Hundreds flock to West End Fair

By MAUREEN RUFE
Pocono Record Reporter

GILBERT — The 51st West End Fair officially opened at 6 p.m. Tuesday and hundreds of Monroe Countians were on hand for the first night of festivities of the five-day event.

Figures were not immediately available as to the exact attendance, since the official parking booths were not opened until 6 p.m. Many fairgoers came to the Gilbert grove early in the afternoon but the overall attendance was described as a capacity crowd.

As Tuesday night began to arrive, the last pieces of farm equipment were pushed into their plots along the dirt road parallel to the midway.

The food stands heated up their ovens and judges were busy as usual trying to award prizes to exhibitors.

The main food stand at the fair grounds, operated this year by private caterer Paul Heck, officially opened its doors at 4 p.m.

A touch of elegance was added to the interior of the rural fair house dining room. Red roses and daisies and flowered table cloths added to the decor. Green flower garlands hung from the ceiling.

A departure from past food stand policy, Heck offered an extensive smorgasbord which included ham, chicken, a variety of condiments, potatoes, peas, sauerkraut, apple butter, rice pudding, fruit salad, tapioca pudding, coffee, tea and a variety of desserts.

Another new addition to the food stand — an open rear window — was busy serving corn soup and sandwiches. A plastic covered terrace was also being readied to serve watermelon and other specialty items.

At 7:15 p.m. the Pleasant Valley Band began entertaining in the upper grove bandstand. The Bucko Sisters, a local singing group, performed on the fair office stage at 7:15 p.m., and the performance was taped for a local television broadcast.

As early as 4 p.m. fairgoers began to assemble their private lawn chairs at the fairgrounds, and were prepared to spend a comfortable evening.

The bulk of the visitors began arriving after 6 p.m. and waited anxiously for the fair houses to be opened to the public. The judging, which began at 2 p.m., for the most part, was not complete until 7 p.m.

"Punchy," a seven-foot, aluminum foil elephant at the Monroe County Republican stand made a big hit with the children, while many of the residents seemed excited about a large air-conditioned John Deere Tractor and the ridge runner, a double track-vehicle, similar to a snowmobile.

An innovative carnival stand was busy producing white plastic mugs, which carried the pictures of Monroe Countians, their children or their pets.

One of the hardest things for fairgoers to adjust to during the first night of the 1972 fair was the distant sound of sirens at the north end of the 50-acre grounds. As it turned out, the sirens were not caused by an ambulance nor a fire truck, but merely was the advertising gimick for a new fair ride.

McGovern junks welfare proposal

NEW YORK (UPI) — Sen. George S. Mc Govern Tuesday sought to assure Wall Street that he is no radical by junking his controversial $1,000-a-person grant plan and promising if elected to name conservative Rep. Wilbur B. Mills as his treasury secretary.

McGovern proposed a liberalized welfare program which he said would guarantee every family of four of an above-proverty income of $4,000 annually but aides said a work requirement provision would deny benefits to idlers.

To pay for social programs, the Democratic presidential nominee vowed to close $22 billion a year in tax loopholes. The list was headed by the tax provision closest to the heart of the financial community-the capital gains rates which tax income from investments at half of the rate of other income. He called his plan a "fair share" tax reform. "Money made by money should be taxed at the same rate as money made by men," he said in a speech to almost 200 members of the New York Society of Security Analysts who were crammed into a small room on the second floor of a Wall Street district restaurant.

In an announcement that was not included in his prepared text, McGovern said he was so sure of victory Nov. 7 that he had already picked Mills, the Arkansas congressman who is chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, to be his Treasury secretary.

Frank Mankiewicz, a McGovern political strategist said the senator talked to Mills about the matter three or four times during the past week and the congressman's reaction was "favorable." He said Mills told McGovern he would be "honored" to consider the appointment.

Mills, reached by telephone at his Searcy, Ark. home, at first said he never discussed the Treasury proposal with McGovern. In a later telephone interview, however, the veteran congressman said he did recall McGovern mentioning a possible cabinet post, but Mills said, "I didn't take it seriously."

Mills said McGovern mentioned the Treasury job in a telephone call which McGovern made to ask Mills about a preliminary draft of the welfare program McGovern presented Tuesday. But Mills said, "We didn't discuss it in any depth. I guess I didn't take it too seriously."

Mills said he would have to wait until McGovern had won the election and actually made a concrete offer for a cabinet position before he could say whether he would take such a job. "I'd have to weigh such a position against the position I have in the House (as chairman of the Ways and Means Committee)," Mills said.

Mills declined to comment on McGovern's welfare proposals until he received a copy of the final text McGovern delivered in his speech Tuesday.

"I realize he can't give an unqualified commitment now while he is running for reelection, McGovern said of Mills, a self-proclaimed conservative on fiscal matters and the acknowledged congressional expert on taxation.

McGovern cited 10 tax loopholes which he said he would close. That would boost the tax on individuals by $12.6 billion and on corporations by $9.4 billion when fully effective in 1975. All of the loopholes are enjoyed only by people with substantial incomes, especially from investments.

"No American whose income comes from wages and salaries would pay one penny more in taxes than he does now," McGovern said.

As a concession to business, McGovern said he would cut the top income tax rate from the present 70 to 48 per cent. He said the cut was taken into consideration in forecasting the $22 billion increase in government revenue.

McGovern said hardly anyone pays anything like the 70 per cent top rate at the present time. He said the average tax rate on high incomes—after taking account of exemptions, deductions and exclusions—is about 32 per cent.

The Democratic candidate proposed a $15 billion increase in federal aid to the public schools which he said would permit local districts to cut property taxes.

Federal flood relief defended

SAN CLEMENTE — Housing and Urban Development Secretary George Romney said Tuesday the Nixon administration is moving with unprecedented speed to aid the victims of Tropical Storm Agnes. He accused Democrat George McGovern of politically exploiting the disaster unfairly. Romney said $2 billion has been spent so far and another $2 billion would be spent in the five-state area hardest hit by the storm.

Nixon won't stop bombing

WASHINGTON — Continued bombing until there is progress at the Paris talks was vowed by Nixon. "There will be no reduction of the bombing and. . .no lifting of the mining" of North Vietnam until there is substantial progress in Paris, the president said. As expected, Nixon again cut the U.S. troop strength in South Vietnam, setting a 27,500 ceiling, down from the current 39,000 men.

Summit talks to begin

SAN CLEMENTE — President Nixon takes off today for two days of talks in Hawaii with Japanese Prime Minister Kakuei Tanaka. The visit will be the first venture into summitry for Tanaka since he took over July 5. The two days of talks will focus mainly on efforts to lower the chronic trade deficit the United States experiences in its business dealings with Japan and on the role Japan will play as the U.S. diminishes its presence in Asia and Japan's moves toward restoring diplomatic relations with Red China.

India-Pakistan reach accord

NEW DELHI — Indian and Pakistani delegations reached agreement on troop withdrawals and refugees guarantees necessitated by last December's war between the two Asian nations. The two countries said they hoped the pact would assure early implementation of the summit pact signed last month by Prime Minister Indira Gandhi of India and President Bhutto of Pakistan.

Two Koreas begin talks

SEOUL — A South Korean Red Cross delegation arrived in North Korea for the first official conference between the two sides since the Korean War. The two sides will discuss plans for reuniting families separated by conflict on the paninsula dating to World War II when the Soviet Union occupied North Korea and left it with a Communist government.

Britain cancels Uganda loan

LONDON — Britain suspended a loan to Uganda in its first economic reprisal against the East African country since President Amin ordered expulsion of Asians holding British and other foreign passports.

Nixon admits violations in GOP campaign funding

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (UPI)—President Nixon admitted Tuesday some of his campaign workers were guilty of "technical violations" of the law in handling his re-election campaign funds but said Democrats were equally at fault.

Nixon told a news conference that by the end of the week the errors of the Democrats in handling funds would become apparent. He did not elaborate.

On the part of the Republicans, the President said there had been no intention to violate new regulations concerning funding and promised to correct technical violations immediately.

Nixon made his remarks in answering a question about the findings of a government investigation to the effect that there were "apparent and possible violations" in the handling of $350,000 in Republican re-election campaign funds.

The celebrated bugging of Democratic headquarters in Washington in June also came up and Nixon said his own investigation—conducted by attorney John R. Dean—showed there is "no one on the White House staff now or in this administration at the present" involved.

The President described the bugging as "a bizarre incident" and added, "We're doing all we can to investigate this incident and not cover it up."

Dapper in a grey suit, Nixon stood outside the guest house at La Casa Pacifica, his ocean-front estate and fielded newsmen's questions for 40 minutes.

Commission takes tough stand

Price increase for autos rejected

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Price Commission Tuesday told Ford and General Motors they could not raise prices on their 1973 cars and trucks now, but that they might be permitted to boost prices later this year if they kept their profits within government guidelines.

It was the toughest action yet in the administration's campaign to hold down automobile price increases —a major factor in the inflation rate — and it drew an angry reaction from Henry Ford II who said he was "astounded by the arbitrary action."

The order by commission Chairman C. Jackson Grayson Jr. rejected requests that would have increased the price of 1973 Ford Motor Co. cars by an average $59 and a General Motors Corp. vehicle price by about $54.

Price increases asked by three others—Chrysler, American Motors and International Harvester —remain suspended until the completion of public hearings scheduled for Sept. 12.

Although the Ford and GM requests were denied, both companies could reapply after Oct. 1 when the commission will have had a chance to review their third-quarter earnings and possibly reconsider Tuesday's order.

Ford, criticizing "the total lack of coordination among the various agencies of government," said his company would resubmit its request at the end of the quarter.

A GM spokesman here said the firm already was in compliance with government guidelines and that the proposed price increases were justified "under price commission regulations."

Ford, in a statement, said his company's proposed increases represented "recovery of only 3 per cent of our total cost increases, and only about half of the added product value."

Denouncing lack of coordination among federal agencies, he said on the one hand the government had required "substantial and costly content to our products" in the form of additional safety equipment, and that by government estimates the additions add up to more than $100 in cost.

But the Price Commission, Ford complained, "Tells us we can't recover any part of the cost."

Grayson, replying to reporters, insisted that his tough ruling was not calculated to aid the administration in an election year by convincing voters that the Republicans were not swayed by big business.

Hawley death sparks plan to tighten welfare rules

HARRISBURG (UPI) — Welfare Secretary Helene Wohlgemuth said Tuesday regulations governing private homes for the mentally retarded will be tightened because of the death of a 15-year-old boy.

"The regulations, which were written in 1967, are very, very vague," Mrs. Wohlgemuth said. "They don't set an exact level of care. They don't even say how much staff these facilities must have."

The Allegheny County chapter of the Pennsylvania Association for Retarded Children (PARC) has called for a grand jury investigation of the death last week of Louis Novak, 15, of Sharpsburg, a patient at Ridge View Center in Hawley, Pa. Authorities said he was "forcibly drowned."

The PARC chapter also demanded the resignation of Elliott Knauer, deputy secretary for the northeast region of the state.

Mrs. Wohlgemuth said she refuses to force Knauer to step down. "There is nothing to be gained by scapegoating one person for a starved system," she said. "Elliot Knauer has done an excellent job."

She said she has called a meeting Thursday of representatives of the PARC and her staff. "We have a pretty angry group of people there," she said. "But I hope we can go beyond that. There is no point in rehashing what has happened.

"Once a tragedy has occurred, we should use it as an impetus to address ourselves to solutions that will lessen the possibility of this happening again in the future."

Mrs. Wohlgemuth said she wants to set up a task force to visit all 54 such facilities in the state "to document the problems and then write regulations that address themselves to those problems."

Ridge View was established last year in a facility once known as the Hillcrest School. Some nine deaths occurred there over the past nine years, officials said. The former owner, John Reilly, was charged with one of the deaths after his license was revoked.

Mrs. Wohlgemuth said Knauer called the owners of Ridge View, Commonwealth Concerns Inc., into a meeting last June 23 shortly after the death of another youth in a compacting machine.

Knauer warned them they had until Aug. 7 to upgrade their facility, she said. In the interim, Knauer was assigned to coordinate all state flood reconstruction programs in the Wilkes-Barre areas.

Consumer triggers action

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (UPI)— Three times Harold J. Endisch, 31, summoned a repairman because the washer and dryer he had purchased broke down.

The third time, the repairman, Richard Imes, fixed the machine but the job was done while Endisch had his shotgun out and was holding it on the repairman, according to a complaint filed against Endisch Tuesday.

"You ain't leaving until you fix the washer and dryer,"' the complaint quoted Endisch as saying.

The appliance firm has agreed to refund Endisch's money for the two attempts at repairs.

Senate report reveals scope of army spying

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Army intelligence agents amassed dossiers on millions of American civilians in a massive, uncoordinated surveillance operation dating from the eve of World War II to the early 1970s, a Senate subcommittee said Tuesday.

In a report growing out of its investigation of Army spying and analyzing sample files furnished by the Justice Department, the constitutional rights subcommittee said Army surveillance was "far more extensive than first imagined' and served "no legitimate (or even illegitimate) military purpose."

"The persons listed include both the great and the obscure," it said. "Included among them are priests, lawyers, singers, comedians and politicians" as well as persons holding 257 occupations —from bartenders to conductors of both trains and orchestras.

The report said no incident was too small to escape the Army's notice. Intelligence files took note of a schoolboy's letter, to the Soviet embassy seeking information for a term paper and of a Baltimore demonstration by six Negroes protesting the biting of a young girl by a police dog.

According to the report, the Army began collecting the information in 1940 to prepare for quelling civilian disturbances and protecting military installations.

Troop pullout set

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (UPI)—President Nixon announced Tuesday that 12,000 U.S. troops would be withdrawn from Vietnam in the next three months, but declared there will be no pre-election halt to the bombing of North Vietnam.

The President issued a statement saying the U.S. troop level would be down to 27,000 by Dec. 1 and later told a news conference that further reduction would depend on the status of prisoners of war, peace negotiations and "enemy activity."

He said there were no immediate plans to lift the mining of Haiphong harbor, indicating it was in the same category as the bombing.

"Unless there is progress on the negotiating front which is substantial, there will be no reduction of the bombing of North Vietnam and there will be no lifting of the mining," he said when pressed to clarify his earlier statements.

Nixon said he was not going "to play election politics" with troop cuts. He said his offer of total withdrawal still stands but is conditional on his prisoner of war policy—that so long as there are prisoners and men missing in action, there will be American troops in Vietnam.

He rejected any idea that the bombing of North Vietnam might be stopped before the election Nov. 7, and declined to predict when the war would end.

He said he was satisfied that the South Vietnamese have the capability to prevent from the North Vietnamese from overrunning the south.

Admiral leads successful attack against N. Vietnam

SAIGON (UPI)—Vice Adm. J. L. Holloway III, commander of the U.S.7th Fleet, personally led a combined sea and air attack deep into North Vietnamese waters, sinking two Communist PT boats and blasting land targets within two miles of Haiphong, North Vietnam's major port and second largest city, the U. S. command said Tuesday.

The Sunday raid was the closest to Haiphong since the current Communist offensive started March 30 and possibly the closest of the war.

Shrapnel from North Vietnamese shore batteries splattered the bridge of one of the four U.S. warships but no casualties were reported. Radio Hanoi, however, said two of the American ships were set on fire.

In equally daring raids far to the south, Communist frogmen blew up a bridge on Highway 1 only 13 miles northwest of Saigon and Viet Cong guerrillas blew up another bridge 40 miles from the capital.

In other ground action:

—Government troops fought their way to a Communist-held hilltop overlooking the district capital of Que Son and held the position long enough to allow a South Vietnamese supply convoy to enter and leave the town. The Communists hold about two-thirds of the town.

—A few miles away and only 25 miles south of Da Nang, Communist forces struck across Highway 1 and routed 2,200 villagers from Binh Duong and Binh Giang. Government troops were called in and killed 16 Communists but were unable to recapture the towns. South Vietnamese casualties were listed as 11 dead and 19 wounded.

The U.S. command said the Navy raid took place before dawn Sunday and was led personally by Holloway and his flagship, the heavy cruiser Newport News.

Fischer plays for draw as 20th match adjourns

REYKJAVIK, Iceland (UPI)—Boris Spassky and Bobby Fischer Tuesday night adjourned their 20th game of the world chess championship on the 41st move with Fischer "playing for a draw."

In a game grandmasters called "one of the dullest yet," Spassky, playing black, bent under the table to write down his 41st move and sealed it to be opened at resumption of play at 5 p.m. (1 p.m. EDT) today.

Fischer holds a three-point advantage over the world champion with 11 points to Spassky's eight. Fischer needs 12-1-2 points to take the title from the Russian.

"Bobby is obviously playing for a draw," Yugoslav grandmaster Svetozar Gligoric said. "He has done throughout the game. It's not the Bobby we know and love."

"It's very drawish," U.S. grandmaster Larry Evans said. "Spassky has a tiny advantage but there's not much in it."

Russian grandmaster Isaac Boleslavsky, one of Spassky's four seconds agreed. "Black (Spassky) has the more advantageous position," he said.

Herbert disputes call to end draft

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Chairman F. Edward Hebert of the House Armed Services Committee Tuesday disputed President Nixon's prediction that the draft could be ended by next July.

The Louisiana Democrat said many men enlist in the armed forces solely as a means of avoiding conscription and that elimination of the draft would render the military unable to meet its manpower requirements.

"I still feel that the only way to get volunteers is with the power to induct," Hebert said in an telephone interview from his New Orleans home.

"Based on my experience, the only way to get a volunteer army is to draft."

Hebert and other members of his committee —which has originated most of the draft legislation in recent years—say that by boosting pay and benefits the administration can reach a goal of "zero draft calls." But this, they point out, is not the same as an all-volunteer army.

Hebert, who has enjoyed a close working and personal relationship with Nixon, was reluctant to criticize the President's intention, announced Monday in San Clemente, not to seek a renewal of induction authority that runs out on June 30, 1973.

Court upholds busing

CINCINNATI (UPI) — The Sixth U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals Tuesday ordered the busing of 14,000 students in Memphis, Tenn., to achieve racial balance in a school system where 87 per cent of the black students attend predominantly black schools.

The court, in the split decision, upheld a lower court ruling ordering the busing. The appeals court said that Memphis has a total of 14,558 students, of which 53.6 per cent are black and 46.4 per cent white, and that 128 of the 162 schools are not integrated.

"We affirm the order of the district court in its entirety, but with the additional instruction that it prepare a definite timetable providing for the establishment of a full unitary school system in the minimum time required to devise and implement the necessary desegration plan," the court said.

U.S. District Judge Robert McCrae ordered the busing plan into effect in April.

"We recognize, of course, the Supreme Court's caution that the existence of some small number of one-race or virtually one-race schools within a district is not in and of itself the mark of a system that still practices segregation by law."

Ellsberg: Five presidents lied

NEW YORK (UPI)—Each of the last five presidents, from Truman through Nixon, has lied to the public about American involvement in Indochina, Daniel Ellsberg said Tuesday in an interview.

Ellsberg, the former government analyst whose disclosure of the Pentagon Papers to the press led to his indictment on charges of conspiring to defraud the government, stealing classified documents, and espionage, came here to publicize his new book, "Papers on the War."

He said he had hoped details about deception and secrecy would come out in testimony in his federal court trial in Los Angeles, which was stayed last month for Supreme Court action on a wiretap issue.

"When I use a word like lie, I want people to realize I'm using the right word, and not just a sugar-coated word," he said. "Making appearances for the book now gives me a chance to go around and say what I believe.

"What I'm saying is that there's 7,000 pages of documents in the Pentagon Papers, and when they're available to presidents and the presidents then told the public about what they were doing and intended to do, the presidents lied.

"The people suspected it before. I think the Pentagon Papers have had the effect that now the people know it. I think the people have asked: did they have a right to make these lies, this much, and in these circumstances? If it were a matter of something like ensuring national survival, I think most people would excuse deceit."

In the book, Ellsberg says that "each of the last five presidents has lied" about Indochina involvement "and where it was likely to go, and always in reassuring, credible ways..."

Infant deaths linked to baby powder increase

PARIS (UPI)—The number of infant deaths that officials attribute to use of a French brand of baby powder rose to 22 Tuesday.

A press spokesman at the Public Health Ministry said reforms would be undertaken in the regulation of such hygienic and cosmetic products. France now exempts them from the controls which medicines must undergo.

Eusebe-Marie Debuc, substitute prosecutor in Charleville-Mezieres, said Tuesday a ninth baby in the Ardennes region died since April as a result of being sprinkled with "Bebe" talcum powder manufactured by the Morhange Company.

In a possible 10th death in the area, police recovered a can of the talc from a family at Chagny whose six-month-old son died May 22.

Lassiter returns to face charges

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Retired Air Force Gen. Olbert F. Lassiter surrendered Tuesday on charges he conspired to bilk the bankrupt Penn Central Railroad out of $21 million in a scheme involving an executive airline service.

Lassiter, of Beverly Hills, Calif., was allowed to sign his own bond of $50,000. A hearing was set for Nov. 13 at which time Lassiter will be represented by Boston defense attorney F. Lee Bailey.

Fair directors announce tractor-pull guidelines

By MAUREEN RUFE
Pocono Record Reporter

GILBERT — The West End Fair Association has released the official rules for Saturday's tractor pulling contest, scheduled for 7:30 p.m., Saturday night.

Contestants must present a certified weight slip upon entry in the competition Saturday night. Chester Snyder, chairman of the local pull, cautioned that drivers should remember that the total weight of the tractor must include the weight of the driver, too.

"Afterall, some drivers weigh 70 pounds while others weigh 300. This can really make a difference," he said. "Drivers should try to get as close to the actual weight in each class (about 5 or 7 pounds under) without going over the total pounds in that category."

In other comments, Snyder said that drivers must have a hitch attached to their tractor, the equivalent of a three-inch hole.

"There is no real indication as to how many tractors we will really have here on Saturday night" explained Snyder," but I know we will have at least 12 tractors in the pull and at least two of those will be driven by women."

Snyder encouraged local participation in the event and said that at the Lehighton Fair a man who had never competed before took second place in his class.

Snyder explained that the difference between the stock and super stock classes was that a stock tractor competed exactly as it was taken out of the field with no changes in engine, etc.

On the other hand, a super stock tractor contains an added supercharger. He stressed that no modified classes will be run at the West End Fair.

Snyder said that if any driver needed additional weights for his tractor during a particular pull, he would see to it that some extra weights were on hand at the fair grounds.

He also stressed that the competition was open to dealers as well as to the public.

In order to compete in Saturday's pull all operators must be at least 16 years of age or must have written permission from their parent or guardian. The contest is open to farm tractors with rubber tires, but no four-wheel vehicles will be allowed to enter.

Each tractor may be entered in more than one class, but not more than twice in one class. There will be one prize per class only.

All weights must be safely secured to the tractor. All stock tractors must be equipped with a hood, grill and no weight frame or weight may extend 24 inches beyond the front of the tractor.

The use of torque converters, automatic shifts, etc., will be permitted during the pull. Tractor drawbars shall not be more than 20 inches from the ground at the point of hitch. The drawbar is to be stationary in all directions.

Operators must remain seated during the pull and have at least one hand on the steering wheel.

All pulls must start from a tight hitch. (No jerking will be permitted.) Tractors must be stopped immediately on a signal from the judge, and must be operated in a safe manner at all times.

The pull shall be considered over when forward motion of the load stops. The judge shall hold "hole digging" to a minimum. Only one pull will be allowed each contestant unless a tie is declared.

Each operator must sign a statement relieving the West End Fair of any liability in case of accident. The committee in charge of the pull will reserve the right to stop and disqualify any tractor if it is not being operated in such a manner as would be safe. The committee will have full power in any dispute not covered in the rules.

More work than meets the eye

By JOE DEVIVO
Pocono Record Reporter

GILBERT — Excited children and adults think about the thrills of the ferris wheel and the music of the merry-go-round while enjoying amusement rides at the West End Fair.

But few probably stop to consider that for each ride at the carnival, approximately three-and-one-half hours of manual labor are required to assemble the parts.

Constructing and tearing down the rides is a full-time job for the workers at the M and D Amusements Co., based in Hazleton.

William Daywalt, a native of Marietta, Ga., is a nine-year veteran with the amusement company.

"As a kid, I helped tear down the rides at a carnival one time and they offered me a job," Daywalt explained.

Daywalt is in charge of assembling the "tilt-a-whirl," which all of the workers described as the most difficult of all the ride to put together.

The "tilt-a-whirl" has many parts and is the heaviest machine to lift while assembling, he said. The use of a derrick is required to assist the workers in its construction.

Once the ride is assembled, Daywalt is in charge of operating the machine and inspecting it to ensure it is safe.

"I test-run and inspect the ride every day," he stated. "All the rides are safe. The only time an accident occurs is the result of failure by the operator to inspect the ride."

Daywalt enjoys his work, and especially "likes traveling" with the firm.

The company provides a trailer for its employes to live in, due to the constant traveling requirement.

Alan Cook, Bethlehem, and Harold Bolland, Palmyra, N.Y., are two of the workers on the merry-go-round. This is the first year on the job for Bolland, while Cook is a four-year employe.

"I didn't like to stay in one place all the time," was the reason Cook gave for taking the job.

"It's the best job I ever had," said Bolland.

Both enjoy the traveling involved in their work and also rate "meeting people" high on the list of benefits.

The merry-go-round requires three people and about three-and-one-half hours to assemble.

"The rides aren't dangerous once they're put together," Cook remarked. "I've never had an accident with a ride in the four years I've been with the firm."

Following the West End Fair this week-end, the amusement workers will dissemble their rides and travel to Hazleton for a Mummers parade.

West End Fair bigger, better

The West End Fair opened Tuesday with little of the hoopla commonly associated with such events. And there in lies the secret of the West End Fair's long success and popularity (the fair is 51 years old and going stronger than ever).

The fair presents one of the few opportunities for people to enjoy a quiet pleasure in sauntering through the bucolic atmosphere of long ago, and yet to have fun in a wholesome way.

There are many areas of interest, and if the only time you have ever seen a team of farm horses is on television, the West End Fair is the place to be. Horse pulling contests are a big attraction, both for the beauty and awesome power of these matched teams and the novelty of muscle power in a machine dominated, "horsepower" world.

The fair is a little bigger this year and a little better, and much of the tribute has to go to the Fair Association volunteers, who did such a Herculean job cleaning the grounds and stables, painting the buildings, filling in rutted roads, mowing the grass, refurbishing the electric system . . . just about all of the details that mean the difference between a good fair and a run-down, so-so event.

Much planning has gone into this 51st season. There will be more farm equipment on display this year, and that's a pretty good index of the type and number of people this well-planned fair will attract. And to see that no one goes hungry, the main food stand is bigger and operated by Paul Heck, a businessman who has decorated the interior (complete with flowered tablecloths) and is planning an outside terrace.

All this is well and good, and the many types of displays will attract a good number of people. (There is something to interest everyone, even the morbid-minded. Various tombstones will be on display.)

But we suspect the real reason the West End Fair is so popular is the absence of "honkytonk" on the midway. Or, as one fair official put it, "no girlie shows here!" Wholesome entertainment. We don't have much left in this world, but it exists in plenty at the West End Fair. No titillation, just enjoyment.

Dark at the top of the stairs

Progress mis-labeled?

"New and improved". How many times have you seen that phrase on some product or other? The trouble is, it doesn't always mean progress.

We have gotten to the point, it seems, where the more we improve things, the worse they are for us or for our world.

When plastic containers first burst upon the scene, it was heralded as a breakthrough. They were touted as less expensive, lighter and less demanding on our dwindling stocks of natural resources. Unfortunately, they also turned out to be more dangerous in many ways and, worst of all, virtually impossible to dispose of with any ease. They became, and are now, a blight on the landscape.

The same holds true for throw-away items, and the reaction against them has reached the point where it is the sign of a concerned citizen (concerned about the environment, that is) to buy goods in returnable containers.

Now the federal government is taking a hard look at aerosol products, particularly feminine hygiene sprays, shaving lathers and cosmetics of various sorts. It seems the propellant in those aerosols, once thought to be inert and harmless, may be far from that. There is much research needed, one official says, but it seems fair to say that some of those products may cause fatal illnesses, both short and long-term.

We seem to have created a situation where our technology has outstripped our ability to tell if engineering breakthroughs are safe or not. And we are in such competitive heat that we rush such products into the market before we know, which makes for embarrassment when companies have to relabel those items as "potentially dangerous."

Ironic, isn't it? The more we progress, the more we regress. The more technological triumphs we produce, the more dangerous life becomes. That judgment can be applied to many things, from the automobile to the jet transport, from the new superhighway to the atom bomb.

What we need are a host of new technological triumphs to give us clean air and water, safe automobiles and planes, a more livable urban environment and a quieter pace of life.

For it is even more ironic that the more gadgets we produce to "make life easier", the more difficult life becomes. When are we going to wake up?

The Pennsylvania Story

Glad tidings

HARRISBURG — Two significant pieces of good tidings came out of the governor's office the other day. Both of them concern saving taxpayers money. Both of them concern the much maligned Department of Public Welfare.

First piece of news is that there has been a reduction of nearly 21,000 individuals on the welfare rolls in the State between March and July of this year — largest such reduction in nearly six years.

Second tid-bit is that improved procedures for management of the Medical Assistance Program have resulted in estimated savings of $22.5 million for the 1971-72 fiscal year.

These two items, for the moment, at least, seemingly reinforce Gov. Milton J. Shapp's pledge to put the Welfare Department on a businesslike, efficient and streamlined basis.

The Welfare Department has come in for a lot of heat recently, including from this column, but the fact remains that the Shapp Administration has done more to reduce the welfare rolls and the costs of running the Department than any administration of more contemporary memory.

The Keystone State, being the third most populated state in the Nation, is bound to have welfare and unemployment problems. The key to a successful welfare program is not allowing the situation to get out of hand as it began to do in the late sixties and early seventies.

These two pieces of news over the weekend are considered by some a shining beacon for the future.

Before Shapp assumed the helm, the medical assistance program was virtually out of control with a suggested medical assistance budget of $141 million.

Under Gov. Shapp a total of $116 million was requested and when the year ended the Welfare Department had spent only $86 million. In other words more than $44 million dollars less than the original estimate.

Secretary of Public Welfare Helene Wohlgemuth attributes part of this success to a slower than estimated increase in the case load, but part of the success is due also to the revised program of hospital utilization review, such as checking the necessity for long hospital stays, etc.

While the number of persons eligible for hospital care increased by 8.7 per cent during the year, actual billings were for 7.12 per cent fewer patient days of care.

There were 5.9 per cent fewer admissions and the average length of stay in the hospital was 3.24 per cent shorter.

Review teams

The governor also assures us that review teams are presently working on reducing medical assistance costs even further in the current fiscal year.

New management techniques (painfully overdue!) also are responsible for the decrease in the public assistance rolls. After leveling off in January of this year the rolls stood at more than 874,000 in the first half of March. By the end of July the number of welfare recipients had dropped to 853,070, a decrease of 20,990.

This decrease can be attributed to some degree to new controls.

Eligibility requirements have been tightened and emergency check issuance has been drastically curtailed.

The direct delivery system for issuing relief checks through banks has been a great success in the City of Philadelphia and has recently been expanded to include the City of Pittsburgh and Dauphin County.

This program will be expanded even further in the near future and should result in more savings and less cost.

All in all, welfare, which was once a great leak in the ship of state, is being sealed — but a lot more pitch will be required to make the hull water-tight.

Birth marks

We are frantically searching for a doctor to remove a wine-colored birth mark that covers about 15 per cent of the face of our 9-year-old daughter.

X-ray treatment and acid-peeling have been suggested, but our doctors refuse to hear of this.

Where can we go and what can we do?

Mr. and Mrs. M.B., Pa.

Dear Mr. and Mrs. B.:

In your desperation to "do something" you are now departing from the sane, solid advice of your doctor. Soon, if you are not careful, you will find that you will be captured by the quackery and exploitation that thrive on anxious people.

You obviously have had the expert opinions of physicians and surgeons who agreed not to do extensive plastic surgery on your daughter. Their judgment is based on years of surgical experience, coupled with a real understanding of the psychological problems of such birth defects. They know how effective skin grafting, tattooing, electro-coagulation, skin abrasion, dry ice and other techniques can be for each individual case.

None of these doctors will undertake any procedure that is hazardous to his patient. Only if they feel they can make a distinct contribution to your daughter would any treatment be started.

Failure and disappointment for your daughter can be far more destructive than the blemish.

All of us in the practice of medicine have had wonderful experiences with young men and women who adjust to birth defects and go on to perfectly normal, healthy lives. They make successful marriages. They learn that cultural and intellectual attainment over-compensates for a defect that soon melts into social insignificance.

There are now excellent cosmetics that can completely hide most birth marks. With good psychological support your daughter can grow into full blossoming maturity without any emotional handicaps.

Under no circumstance should you become involved in any "miracle cure" that is the special secret of only one person. Remember that all plastic surgeons know all the recognized safe techniques.

Above all, be sure that your "frantic search" does not induce anxiety and unhappiness in your daughter.

Are vibrating machines any good for reducing?

Mrs. S.V., Tenn.

Dear Mrs. V.:

Vibrating machines are excellent for giving added tone and support to the muscles of the body. They may add firmness and thus take away inches from the waist and the hips.

They are of little or no value for the actual loss of weight. Reliable manufacturers emphasize that these fine machines are no substitute for the basic principles of reducing.

Can a "blue baby" outgrow the condition or is an operation always necessary?

Miss K.J., N.C.

Dear Miss J.:

The so called "blue baby" has been identified this way because cyanosis or blueness is the child's most striking feature. The blueness is caused by an inadequate supply of oxygen circulating in the blood throughout the body.

There are technical congenital malformations of the heart that can interfere with the amount of oxygen and hemoglobin in the blood. The most common condition is known as the Tetralogy of Fallot. Children born with abnormality have four distinct problems with the anatomy of the heart and the blood vessels that interfere with normal functioning.

The mechanical defect of the heart cannot be "outgrown." Surgery to remedy all four problems had been remarkably successful. The ideal time and the type of surgery, of course, depend on the judgment of the surgeon and physician in each individual case.

Investigation needed

In retrospect

By Bert Walter

The Pennsylvania Justice Department should join Wayne County Coroner Robert Jennings in a full scale investigation into the death of a mentally retarded child at the Ridge View Center in Hawley.

The justice department should also go one step further and investigate the Pennsylvania Welfare Department for allowing the facility to remain open-even after staff reports pointed out inadequacies in manpower at the center and unsanitary living conditions.

The facility has a history of deaths and the justice department should initiate the probe into the welfare department to hold someone accountable for allowing such a facility to remain open.

Immediately after the death of Louis Novak, 15, a mongoloid child, the welfare department ordered Ridge View Center closed. Unfortunately the action should have been taken long ago if welfare department officials would have acted on reports concerning the center.

Jennings said the mongoloid child was "forcibly drowned." Novak was being bathed by an attendant and five residents, one of whom had a history of aggressive behavior.

Last June 14, a 14-year-old male resident at Ridge View was crushed to death in a garbage truck.

Previously, when the facility was known as the Hillcrest School for the Retarded and operated by John and Letitia Reilly, a young resident died from pneumonia. Reilly has been charged with manslaughter stemming from the death and is awaiting trial.

There have been other reported deaths at the facility which Jennings has recorded and we think it is about time that the welfare department is taken to account for this facility since the welfare department pays for the care of these mentally retarded and is charged with the responsibility to determine that these mentally retarded persons are given proper care and treatment.

The welfare department has played a key role in the facility — when it was Hillcrest and now as Ridge View — and nothing had ever been done, until now. We think something more should be done now to insure against any possibility of other deaths in such facilities operated throughout the state.

The Pennsylvania Association for Retarded Children chapter in Allegheny has demanded the resignation of Elliot Knauer, welfare department deputy secretary in charge of the northeast region, who allowed the facility to remain open despite reported inadequacies.

The PARC chapter also demanded a grand jury investigation into the death. We feel however, the justice department should take the initiative and spark such a grand jury probe and the first witness ought to be none other than Knauer.

Election interferes with policy

By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON — President Nixon's pursuit of Jewish votes has collided, apparently, with a new Mideast policy being urged upon him by the State Department.

The U. S. mission in Cairo has reported that the Soviet-Egyptian break is far more significant than Washington had dared to hope. Not only have most Russian advisers been sent home, but Russian reconnaissance planes have also departed Egypt.

The State Department has urged, therefore, that the time is ripe for the United States to restore better relations with Egypt's President Sadat. A little pressure on Israel to soften its terms, the State Department argues, not only would improve U. S. standing in Egypt but might lead to a Middle East settlement.

President Nixon has forbidden the slightest pressure on Israel, however, while he is courting Jewish voters in the presidential eampaign.

Hhe decided last year to make a strong appeal for Jewish votes as part of his drive to broaden the base of the Republican party. He overruled the advice of some White House advisers, particularly his chief of staff H. R. Haldeman, who argued that it would be useless to compete with the Democrats for the Jewish vote.

Key letter

But the president was influenced by a letter that B'nai B'rith official Herman Edelsberg wrote to Earl Mazo, Nixon's biographer. Mazo sent a copy of the letter, dated April 2, 1971, to the White House where it has been carefully studied.

"At this time," wrote Edelsberg, "the central Jewish concern seems to be the danger to Israel. The leadership of the Jewish community. . . has heard time and time again that Nixon has been the best friend Israel has had in the past 20 years.

"I will not pretend that this word has filtered down to the precincts. But it's there to exploit."

Edelsberg buttressed his argument with election statistics. "It would be foolish defeatism," he wrote, "for the Republicans to write off the Jewish vote. . . .

"In the 1968 election, in the East, Humphrey got 83 percent of the Jewish vote; Nixon 15 percent; Wallace two percent. . . . In the Midwest, however, the Jewish vote was 71-26-3.

"Nixon did 11 points better in the Midwest than in the East. Why should anyone assume that a proper effort could not get a 10-point pickup in the East?

"But it's much more than New York. There is California with 700,000 Jews, Illinois with almost 300,000 and Pennsylvania with 440,000. When was the last time anyone carried the nation without at least two of these states?"

Footnote: Edelsberg, who confirmed the authenticity of his letter, explained he wrote it "not to show the Republicans how to win the Jewish vote, but rather to make the point that as one of the two major political parties in America, the Republicans would be foolish just to write off the minority vote."

Despite their annual complaints over military cuts, the Army brass always seems to have plenty of money to entertain visiting dignitaries.

Last spring, for example, the 101st Airborne Division at Ft. Campbell, Ky., was notified that President Nixon would drop in on a "homecoming" celebration scheduled for April 6.

The brass immediately began preparing a lavish welcome that eventually cost an estimated $250,000.

Two days before the great day, the Army was told the President couldn't make it, and Ft. Campbell would have to settle for second best, Vice President Spiro Agnew.

Undaunted, the brass pushed ahead with their reception plans. All over the post, soldiers and civilians alike scurried about with paintbrushes and whitewash buckets.

The facility engineering shop labored long hours putting together recruiting and promotional displays. All told, the civilians at Ft. Campbell put in about 4,400 hours of overtime.

After all their preparations, insiders tell us, the brass were worried not enough people would be on hand to cheer Agnew. So 47 chartered buses were dispatched to the hinterlands to bring in some 1,700 parade-watchers.

Another 15 buses were rented to supplement the army buses that were being used to shuttle visitors to and from parking lots. Some $3,200 was spent to hire a fleet of cars to haul around the brass hats and other "visiting dignitaries."

A report of expenses, prepared by post comptroller Col Robert A. Koob and stamped "For Official Use Only," discloses the army spent $110,936.31 in one-time expenses for Project Homecoming.

"The wide variance between the actual and the $250,000 estimate," wrote Colonel Koob, "is basically that civilian salaries (other than overtime) are not recorded as one-time expenses."

Footnote: An army spokesman explained that Project Homecoming was really just a recruiting effort. It was "regarded as a great opportunity to get the attention of the people in the recruiting area around Ft. Campbell," he said, "and to advance the cause of the 101st Airborne Division's recruiting effort."

Stories Behind Words

By William Penfield

BIBLE

The Phoenicians, who lived on the eastern end of the Mediterranean, were great traders. One of their ports was Gebal, famous as a market for papyrus, a paper that the Egyptians made from the inner bark of the papyrus plant.

The Greek name for Gebal was Byblos. Since they got their paper at this port, the Greeks called the paper "byblos" or "biblos." Eventually "biblos" was used to denote the scrolls or books made from this paper. The diminutive form of "biblos" was "Biblion" — a little book — and the plural of "biblion" was "biblia."

The Jews adopted "biblia" — little books — as a name for the Scriptures. The world became "Bible" in English.

Unusual vehicle draws attention

BY MAUREEN RUFE
Pocono Record Reporter

GILBERT — Most people have heard of a road runner, but how many know what a ridge runner is?

One of the most popular vehicle attractions at the West End Fair, this year, the ridge runner is part of the George McGrath exhibition and is on display near the main concession stand at the top of the midway area.

Operating on two tracks, the ridge runner can be run all year long, but is primarily to be used on snow. All three models, which start at approximately $2,600, can pull up to 2,000 pounds and can operate with a snow plow attached to them. One model even contains a convertible top.

Another big attraction to visitors is a huge air-conditioned John Deere Tractor which cost approximately, $14,000. Also on display are a variety of miscellaneous vehicles including an ultraterrain vehicle and a three-wheel Honda HTC 90.

In addition to these vehicles, this week at the fair, Monroe Countians will have an opportunity to see almost every kind of vehicle imaginable from riding lawnmowers to manure spreaders.

Seven different snowmobile companies will have their latest models on display and nine different farm machinery companies will be represented.

In addition, campers, small trailers, motorcycles, mobile homes, hondas, mini bikes and one piece of industrial equipment will be available for scrutiny.

"Our display is one of the biggest around. We have more farm machinery here than they do at most other fairs," said Donald Everett, assistant secretary of the fair association and chairman of the concessions committee.

"One reason so many people probably come here to display their vehicles," he continued, "is that our entry fees are not very high."

Farm equipment will be on display by Badger Equipment, International, Miller-Oliver, H.W. Grammes, L.A. Lapresti, Monroe Equipment, Edwards Farm Machinery, Johnson Brothers and Lee Ross.

The machinery will include such items as barn cleaners, tractors, manure spreaders, small loaders, combines, bailers and feed mixers.

Everett commented that the farm machinery was a big drawing card for the fair and said the amount of equipment displayed has increased slightly over last year.

Running parallel to to the midway, seventeen different farm equipment blocks have been staked out. Some small trailers are at the end of the row.

The mobile homes and majority of campers and trailers are at the top of the midway, while the other vehicles are across the street in one of the main concession buildings.

Everett, conceding that it was a thrill for kids to get up on a tractor at the fair, said the association never experienced any safety problems with vehicles.

He explained that last year a front-end loader accidently cut one of the electrical wires at the fair grounds, but said the situation was taken care of immediately without consequence.

"Many of these businesses come here to show the people what they've got. It's a good way to advertise," said Everett. "Some make out pretty good, because everybody looks at the vehicles when they come here."

Everett explained that the fair never had to turn away farm equipment companies, but as far as the other vehicles were concerned, he said there just wasn't enough space for everybody.

"We could have booked another fair house full this year if we would have had the room," he said.

Explaining that it takes about two or three days for the farm vehicles to arrive, Everett said some advertisers come from as far away as Tamaqua and Nazareth.

He estimated that there are more than 100 vehicles on display this week.

"This department is getting bigger every year," said Everett in his final comments, "three or four years ago there were no snowmobiles to display. Now we have everything."

English horse show set for this morning at fair

GILBERT — An all-English horse show will kick off the first of four exhibitions for equestrians at 10 a.m. today at the West End Fair.

Walt Smith, chairman for all of the horse shows at the 1972 fair, said each of the contests will be open to the general public, not just members of the Penn-Jersey Horse Association.

Trophies will be awarded to the winners in each class, with ribbons presented to the first six placers.

In the English classes, riders are clothed in English riding attire and the horses are equipped with English-style saddles.

Classifications in the two general styles of judging done at the show are equitation and "judge class."

In equitation competition, only the rider undergoes scrutiny by the judges. "Judge class" involves both the performance of the horse and the rider.

Classes in the English show include hunt seat equitation, models, jumpers, and ponies.

During the model classes for ponies, hunters and Arabians, the horses are judge for their conformation, soundness, and "way of going." In laymen's terms, the judges will be inspecting the animal's physical characteristics, build, and manner of walking.

Riders in the hunt seat classes are rated on how well they control their mount. The horses must walk, trot, and canter around the ring while the judges examine the rider's hands, seat and control while riding.

The jumping events consist of a course made up of a minimum of six obstacles the horse must clear. The object of the event is not to race against the clock for speed, but rather to clear the jumps without touching them.

Points are deducted for "ticks" when a horse brushes a pole while jumping. Automatic "faults" are also scored against a horse that knocks down any of the obstacles.

Barriers the animals are required to clear include such items as panels, hedge-fences, barrels, hay, and other similar items a thoroughbred-type hunter horse might encounter one a trail.

The jumping portion of the English show is usually considered the most exciting segment, said Smith, because of the "potential danger" involved.

The age of the riders in the competition ranges from the "ten years and under" category for the youth pleasure class to the unlimited age bracket for the open jumper competition.

Many of the area stables enter their horses in the shows, stated Smith, and have their students ride the animals.

Included in the local stables entered in the competition are horses from Hill Meadows Stables, Snydersville; Meadowbrook Farms, Henryville; and Car-Nan-Sa Stables, Allentown.

Stamp collectors don't just paste stamps in books

By JOE DEVIVO
Pocono Record Reporter

GILBERT — Traditionalists who believe stamp collectors only paste their postage stamps in albums to treasure and admire have a lot to learn about the new breed of philatelics.

The Pocono Mountains Philatelic Society, based in East Stroudsburg, is sponsoring a display in the new exhibition hall at the east end of the West End Fairgrounds. The exhibits include innovative methods of collecting stamps in which the senior members of the club encourage the beginners to participate.

One group of album sheets done by the junior members features themes in stamps, such as track and field and satellites.

Another method of using stamps is depicted by designs created by cutting and pasting damaged stamps.

Ray Patton, senior member of the club, said the idea of the organization was to help get youngsters started in the hobby of stamp collecting.

Members are currently working on plans for the First National All Juniors Exhibit, to be held next April 6-8 at the Penn Stroud Hilton Motor Inn in Stroudsburg.

Age brackets in the show will be 9 to 12, 13 to 15, and 16 to 18 years old.

The club, which numbers approximately 35 persons, is hoping to interest new members through its display.

Herman Sibum, Jr., of East Stroudsburg, is one of the junior members in the organization. A member of the club for three years, Sibum began collecting "almost everything" in the way of stamps at first.

"Once you become more knowledgeable, many people specialize in stamps from a particular countries," he said.

Stamps which are the oldest and in mint condition are not necessarily the most valuable, Patton said.

For example, Patton pointed to the first stamp ever printed, in Great Britain in 1847 which is worth only $15.

A stamp such as the $5 Calvin Coolidge presidential issue might be worth more if it were cancelled rather than new, since few were issued.

Persons interested in the stamp club are invited to attend the group's first meeting of the season on Tuesday, September 19 at Patton's home in Stroudsburg. The organization meets the first and third Tuesday of every month from September to June.

Huge artificial elephant present in GOP display

GILBERT — One of the animals most people would not expect to be on display at the West End Fair Grounds this week is an elephant.

Standing about seven foot tall, the most unusual feature about the "jungle beast" is that he is shiny silver and actually reflects the sun.

Covered with a huge red blanket tagged appropriately GOP, "Punchy" as he is affectionately called, is actually made of chicken wire and aluminum tin foil, and is the main attraction at the Monroe County Young Republican stand along the midway.

"Punchy" received some last minute touch up work and a new pair of eyes early Tuesday from Republican volunteer Debbie Rine, in preparation for his week-long stay at the Gilbert fair grounds

Debbie, together with several other Republicans from Monroe County will be staffing the booth around the clock during the fair to disseminate campaign literature and bumper stickers to interested fair goers.

A $25 bond will be given away each day at the stand and the young republicans said they hoped all residents would want to stop by to get a closer look at "Punchy," who was originally constructed for a Holloween parade last year.

Breakfast booth

St. John's Lutheran Church, Effort, has established a breakfast booth at the West End Fair. Breakfast may be purchased between 8:30 and 11:30 a.m. daily. Income accrued will go toward church projects. (Staff photos by Maureen Rufe)

Effort church establishes breakfast booth at fair

GILBERT — Determined to best serve the hungry stomachs at the West End Fair, the women of St. John's Lutheran Church in Effort have extended their food stand hours to provide breakfast for early fair arrivals and workers.

The booth has always opened on Monday to "take care of the working people" at the fairgrounds, said Mrs. Louella Shupp of the church organization.

The food stand serves bacon, eggs, sausage, homefries, toast and coffee from 8:30 to 11:30 a.m. Approximately 40 to 50 people attended the breakfast hours Tuesday and workers estimated "we'll probably have even more today once the fair officially opens."

Those who appreciate the stand the most are the workers who arrive at the fairgrounds at an early hour.

"We were kept hoppin' for a while," one woman reported. Some of the eager persons began lining up at 7 a.m. waiting for the stand to open.

"One man ate three orders of bacon, eggs, and toast and two helpings of homefries," said a kitchen volunteer.

This is the fifth year the St. John's Church has had a booth at the fair. The organization has always felt the advantage of being the first food stand open during fair week is the extra income produced benefiting the church.

The church is working toward the purchase of an organ this year and will celebrate its 100th anniversary Sept. 10.

In addition to the breakfasts, the booth does a booming business on the sale of hamburgers, hot dogs, and sausage sandwiches.

As an example of the heavy demand for food at the booth, 150 boxes of hamburger rolls, 100 hot dog rolls, and 100 sausage buns were ordered for just the first two days of the fair.

Meat totals for Monday reached 45 pounds of sausage and 75 pounds of hamburger.

In addition to Mrs. Shupp, mainstays serving the food at the booth include Mrs. Audrey Hannon, Effort; Mrs. Mable Treible, Effort; Mrs. Anna Mae Green, Effort; and Mrs. Linda Shoemaker, Saylorsburg.

Mug stand

Dale Ott and his daughter Debra stand in front of their photo-mug stand at the fairgrounds trying to entice fairgoers into having their picture taken. (Staff photos by Maureen Rufe)

Ever miss your sweetie?

BY MAUREEN RUFE
Pocono Record Reporter

GILBERT — After their trip to the annual West End Fair this year, visitors may be able to look at their sweethearts picture on their coffee mug each morning.

That is if they happen to have three minutes spare time while they are at the fair and can afford to purchase the unique mug for $1.98 plus tax.

Operated by Dale Ott and his daughter Debra, the Photo on a Mug stand is being used for the first time at the West End Fair. Describing the adventure as "a testing period," Ott said that his stand was one of only ten such operations in the entire United States.

The entire procedure takes only about three minutes. Subjects — who may be people, dogs, horses, or just about anything that can be photographed, are asked to stand against a navy background.

Their picture is taken by Debra and in three minutes the film is developed. Next the small round four-color photograph is mounted inside a small white plastic mug.

Customers have their choice of a variety of inscriptions on the cup which are as follows:

World's greatest baby, son, daughter, grandson, granddaughter, kids, mother, father, love, gambler, godchild, drinker, stud, grandchild and lovers.

"If we had a cup that read 'World's Greatest Republican or Democrat we could make a fortune right now," said Ott. "Most people don't realize that a stand like this is a $9,000 or $10,000 investment."

In further comments, Ott explained that a friend of his with a similar operation receives a guarantee for 1300 mugs when he goes to a dog show. Each one of the owners has his pet's picture inserted in a mug.

Nice tractor!

Ponies ready for exhibit

GILBERT — The "little guys on the block" will get a chance to put on a performance of their own when the West End Fair Association sponsors an open pony show at 6 p.m. today.

The ponies, which are a unique breed of horses, all stand under 14.2 hands in measurement. In addition to the competition found in the English show earlier in the day, the pony show will contain several of its own special categories.

A lead line class for children under seven years old will be the second segment of competition in the show. The ponies are judged on their physical characteristics, build, and manner of walking while an older person leads the animal the child is riding.

"The youngsters really enjoy this phase of the competition," said horse show chairman Walt Smith.

"This is the first step of competitive horsemanship for the children and it's quite a thrill for the winners when they receive their ribbons," he remarked.

In the pony pleasure driving class, the animal is hooked up to a cart and judged on performance, manners, and ease of going at a walk, trot, and pleasure gait.

The cart pulled by the ponies is similar to a sulky pulled by harness horses, but the emphasis is on form rather than speed.

Spectators at the show will also be treated to at least two demonstration races. The ponies will pull carts, as in the pleasure driving segment, and race around the course for speed, resembling a miniature form of trotters.

The pony show, along with the other exhibitions at the fair, will be held at the horse arena, located at the southeast end of the fairgrounds behind the 4-H exhibit building.

There is no charge for fairgoers to watch the shows, and bleacher seats under the shade trees are available for spectators.

Exhibit on tap

EASTON — Forks of the Delaware, Chapter 14 of the Society for Pennsylvania Archeology will present "Drums Along the Delaware," an archeological exhibit of early man, from 10 a.m. to 9 p.m., Sept. 30, and from 10 a.m. to 8 p.m., Oct. 1 at the Moose Auditorium, 147 S. 4th St., Easton.

William Price examines the four-foot Yellow Poplar log which has sprouted after laying idle in his workshop for at least 10 years.

10-year-old log begins to sprout

MOUNTAINHOME — A four-foot Yellow Poplar log which had lain in the workshop of a Mountainhome man was discovered to have sprouted again following the heavy rains which hit the area in the wake of Hurricane Agnes.

William Price of Mountainhome, whose hobby is tree botany, was using the log as a base for a flower pot next to his cellar steps when he discovered 11 sprouts on it in early July.

Price said the log had been in his workshop for the past three years, where it was used as a carpentry prop. Before that, it had been in the basement of Price's father.

Price was unable to say when the log was cut, but two local tree experts who saw the log believe that it had been cut for at least 10 years.

Price removed the log from his workshop in May, coated the bottom 10 inches with roof tar, and planted it in the ground as a base for a flower pot. Two months later he noticed the first sprouts.

Dr. Frank Buser, Associate Professor of Biology at East Stroudsburg State College, inspected the log and theorized that it had been cut at the height of its growth, and due to excellent preservation indoors, it lost only evaporated water from its inner bark.

When the heavy rains hit the area earlier this summer, water seeped into the log from the bottom of the flower pot and reactivated the sap nutrients responsible for growth.

24 dogs receive tattoos

STROUDSBURG — Twenty-four dogs ranging in size from a miniature Poodle to a Saint Bernard were earmarked at the first PETGUARD dog tattooing clinic held in the Poconos recently.

The clinic was sponsored by the Pennsylvania SPCA and was held at the Monroe County branch shelter on Wild Animal Farm Road, Stroudsburg R.D. 1.

Included in the clinic were three guide dogs, which were accompanied by their visually handicapped owners. The tattoos and their 10-year registrations were done without charge for the three animals.

A.S. Pure, owner and founder of PETGUARD, a national dog registry and tattooing service, travelled from Philadelphia to handle the clinic, first in a series which will be sponsored by the SPCA in the area.

Pure instructed Edwin J. Cantrill, agent in charge of the shelter, so he can handle future clinics.

The tattoo, done instantly with a small hand clamp, is no more painful than an inoculation, and provides a pet with lifetime identification, giving positive proof of ownership which cannot be removed should the dog be lost or stolen.

Workshop officials disappointed

Mosquito workshop ignored

BY CONRAD GROVE
Pocono Record Reporter

EAST STROUDSBURG — Eight of the 15 types of mosquitoes in this area carry encephalitis.

But indications are, only three members of this area's population think it's a serious threat. That's the number who turned out for a mosquito seminar Tuesday drawing top speakers from the state to East Stroudsburg State College.

"I'm really disappointed," said Dr. Balakrishna Rao, president of the Mosquito and Vector Control Association of Pennsylvania and ESSC biology professor.

"The public talks about this concerning them — but where was the public? I thought they'd have an opportunity to learn something."

Rao's association and the Cooperative Extension Service of Penn State University sponsored the seminar, dealing with the mosquito problem in layman's terms and discussing biology, breeding habits and possible control measures.

"They're (the public) really interested in mosquito control," was the dejected statement by Monroe County agent John Withrow.

He said his agricultural extension received more than 100 complaints this summer.

The wet, early season weather — coupled with this region's rising population — increase the chances of encephalitis, Withrow warned.

Emilie Henning, one of the citizens who turned out, called the program "extremely informative regarding the threat."

But she added: "I could only come to one conclusion — people just aren't concerned about their health or the health of the county.

"I just wonder what will happen to the resort business if there is a case of encephalitis."

She has asked the Monroe County Commissioners to tour the area where she lives, Maplewood Estates in Stroud Township, for first hand information on the pest.

Seventy residents of that area signed a petition asking the commissioners to seek means of controlling the problem.

The problem of controls is complex, points out Withrow. Not all of the 15 types of mosquitoes, for example, hatch eggs at the same time and some can travel greater distances to avoid fatal chemicals than others.

Any object capable of holding water, like a tin can in a backyard, offers a breeding place, said Withrow.

The two major methods of quelling the problem, said Withrow, are to destroy the larvae or destroy the adult. Destroying the larvae is the most effective, since the adult female can merely fly to a safer spot.

Both Withrow and Rao called for the establishment of a local commission to identify breeding areas and coordinate control measures.

"Even though this is the end of August and the mosquito problem is decreasing," stated Mrs. Henning, "it's still going to be an annual problem.

"There should at least be some planning within the next few months. Unless the public starts taking some action, we won't be getting anywhere."

Cahill still cool on Tocks

TRENTON, N.J. — New Jersey Governor William T. Cahill is still withholding support of the Tocks Island Dam and Reservoir Project in spite of the fact that the Nixon Administration and a majority of the New Jersey congressional delegation have gone on record favoring the project, according to sources in the state capital.

Sources close to the Governor made known his position Monday in reaction to reports Cahill had made a decision in the matter.

Earlier this year Cahill had withdrawn his support of the project pending the completion of a thorough review of the proceedings.

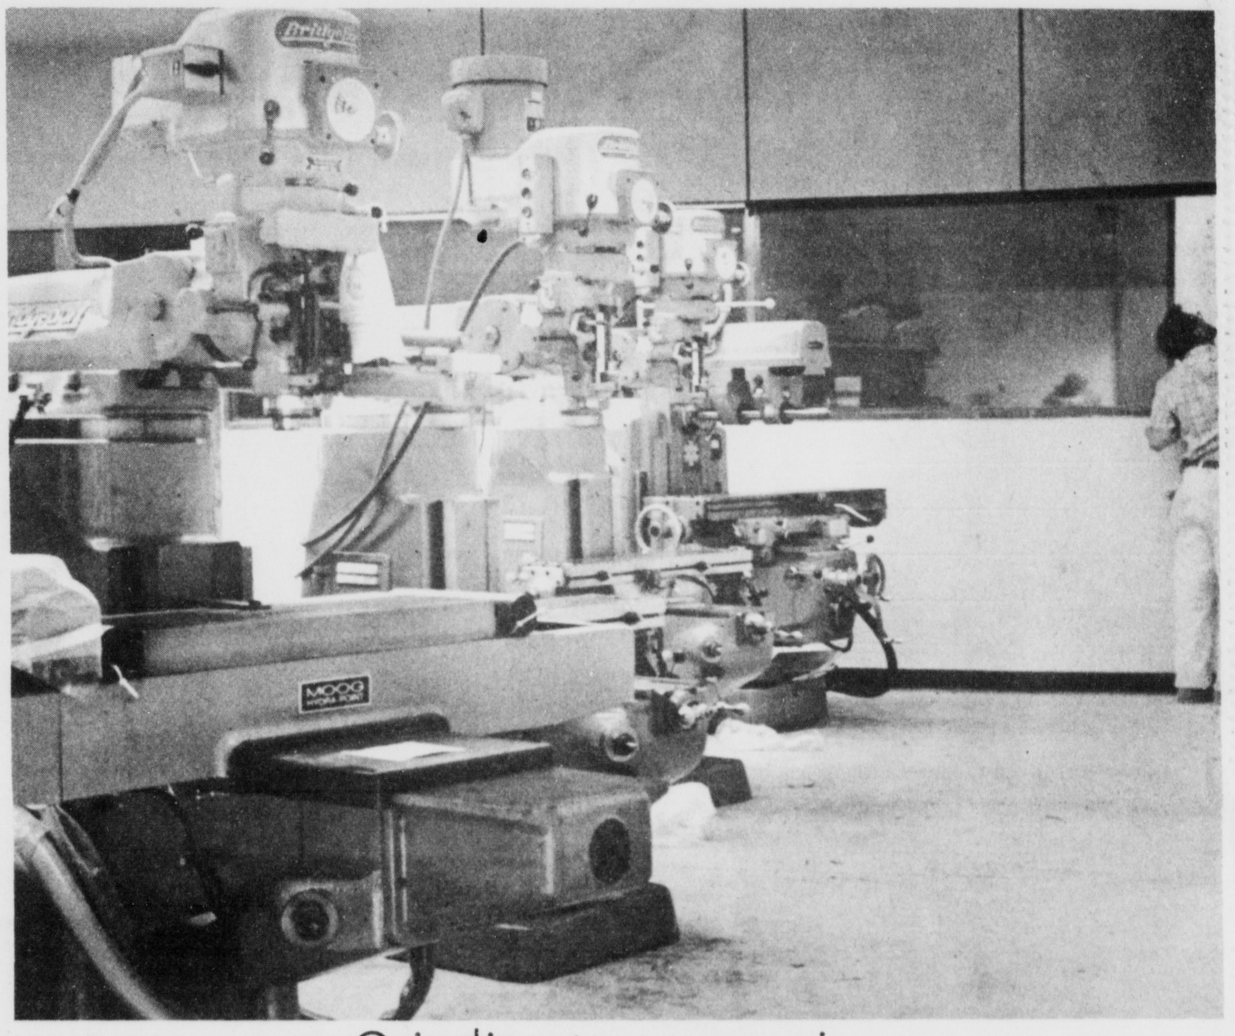
At that time the Governor said he was particularly concerned with plans for access roads to and from the project area and the possibility of haphazard commercial development could spoil the site.

Cahill had requested officials of the New Jersey Department of Environmental Protection to review the project in light of his concerns.

The review is nearing completion and is expected to be submitted to Cahill by Labor Day.

Capital sources speculated that Cahill has come under increasing political presure because of his failure to endorse the Tocks project.

The Nixon Administration has expressed its support of the undertaking and the New Jersey Governor is spearheading the President's relection campaign in the Garden State.



Grinding to an opening

Inside the Monroe County vo-tech school, a workman puts finishing touches to the machine shop, the only shop where equipment has been placed to date. A seven-shop area was approved Tuesday by the Department of Education. All students, regardless of whether their study areas are completed, will report to the school next Wednesday and be assigned related work. Lunches will not be served until the total building is completed, expected to take another two or three weeks.

Greene-Dreher fair to open with arrival of exhibitors

NEWFOUNDLAND — The 55th annual Greene-Dreher-Sterling Community Fair swings into gear today with the first arrivals of exhibitors at the fairgrounds.

Exhibits will be accepted and placed by the fair association between 10 a.m. and 7 p.m., with fair officials expecting a much larger scope of exhibits than ever before. A spokesman for the fair association said there will be a few changes in the type of exhibits this season.

"We're going to have farm equipment, such as tractors and machinery, which we've never had here before. Other new exhibits will be a grange exhibit and a mobile home display, both of which you don't usually see at a community fair of this type," she said.

Judging of these and other exhibits will be held Thursday from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m., after which the halls will open their doors for public inspection.

A total of 10 exhibit departments will be featured at the fair, which will run through Saturday on the fairgrounds. Various departments and their contents are as followsg;

Department One: Dairy Cattle, including 4-H, vocational agriculture and FFA cows. Cattle breeds to be entered include Ayshires, Holsteins, Jerseys, Brown Swiss, Guernseys and Milking Shorthorns. Dairy goats, sheep, beef cattle and swine are also in this category.

Department Two: Grains and vegetables: Grain and seed crops, silage corn and husking corn, hays, grasses and grains make up this area. Also involved are vegetables.

Department Three: Poultry, eggs and rabbits. Ducks, turkeys, chickens, roosters, hens, geese, rabbits, capons and Cornish game hens make up this level.

Department Four: Fruits. Included in this area are apples, pears, plums, peaches, grapes, berries and a special award to the best exhibit showing a plate of any five varieties.

Department Five: Home and dairy products. Cakes, including chocolate, chiffon, banana, cocoanut, nut, upside down cakes, sponge (angel food); candies, such as fudge, peanut butter, fondant, penuchi, sea foam, creams and taffy; canned fruits and vegetables, canned meats, jellies, preserves, jams, relishes, pickles, juices and honey and syrup complete the wide variety involved in this category.

Department Six will include forestry exhibits.

Department Seven: House plants, especially fowering ones, are ntered here. Included are foliage and fruited flowers, arrangements and even pictures of pressed flowers suitable for wall hangings.

Department Eight: Group exhibits are listed here, including all types of exhibits entered by boys and girls of 4-H, FFA, FHA and Juvenile Grange make-up. Awards will be presented for various arrangements.

Department Nine: Domestic and fine arts. Afghans, bed spreads, chair seatings, crocheted articles, cut work, drawn work, embroidered material, infants' wear, knitting, quilts, rugs (without raw edges), sewing, tatting, needlepoint, hemstitching, smocking, hemming and various types of weaving and crafts will be entered.

Department 10 encompasses the junior and homemaking departments. Included here are home-made clothing, various baked goods, needlework, flower arrangements and ceramics in the homemaking division and material workings, hand crafts, ceramics, baking, and arts and crafts in the junior division.

The fair, which is expected to exceed last year's substantial crowd, will also include a dairy show and judging, chicken bar-b-que, pony show and a live performance by The Blue Ridge Quartet and Mark Four on its Thursday agenda.

Friday, a horse show and judging of sheep, beef and swine will take up the morning hours, with payment of premiums and a live performance by Wilma Lee and Stoney Cooper scheduled for the evening session.

Horse-pulling with light teams gets underway Saturday, a day which will also feature a special dinner for octogenarians and golden wedding anniversary couples.

Tractor-pulling, horse-pulling and garden tractor pulling will also be featured Saturday, as will the second annual baby parade.

Connoisseurs of fine food will have themselves a time during the fair with the many food booths. Chicken barbecues and clam cookouts are scheduled daily, beginning at noon each day and running until the supply of food is exhausted.

Juvenile ordered to remain in jail

STROUDSBURG — A 17-year-old East Stroudsburg youth found delinquent for driving an automobile without the consent of the owner was ordered into the Monroe County Juvenile Detention facilities Tuesday, pending a dispositional hearing.

Testimony against the youth was given in Juvenile Court by Warren Smith, of East Stroudsburg, who said the youth appropriated an automobile he was driving on Aug. 26.

Smith testified he was delivering newspapers for Tri-State News around 3:15 p.m. when the defendant used the car without his consent.

Smith was making deliveries to Swan's News in East Stroudsburg when the defendant emerged from the Fenner Building next door accompanied by another youth and asked for a ride to Grant's Department Store.

Smith said no, stating he had to complete his deliveries and got into a Volkswagen owned by Tri-State News. The youths got into the car from the other side and demanded he take them to Grant's. Smith said he agreed to the demand.

When the auto reached Grant's, one of the youths had spotted "his girl friend's car" going in the opposite direction along Brown Street.

Smith said the defendant told him he wanted the car and "pulled" him from the driver's seat, Smith went around the Volkswagen to the other side and got in before the juvenile started the auto over the Inter-Borough bridge.

From there, Smith related a bizarre ride into Stroudsburg, back to East Stroudsburg and down to Eagle Valley Corners and then back into East Stroudsburg.

He said the defendant drove the auto around 30 miles per hour and never shifted from first gear. After running a stop sign, the defendant stalled the Volkswagon on a grade and the youths couldn't restart the car.

Smith said the transmission of the auto had been "burned out" by driving in first gear over the correct speed.

On the stand, the 17-year-old defendant said Smith's testimony was accurate except for the claim he had pulled Smith from the car in front of Grant's parking lot.

No children available for adoption

STROUDSBURG — No normal, white, pre-school children are available for adoption in Monroe County and there haven't been any for the past two years, according to Miss Phyllis Kunda, executive director of the county Children's Bureau.

Applications for black, school-age, interracial and handicapped children are being accepted by the bureau, but chances of adoption are slim even in those categories.

Some six children eligible for adoption are awaiting court action on the relinquishment of formal rights by their parents. The six range in age from five months to seven years and have homes waiting for them.

Miss Kunda said some 13 couples in the area are awaiting court action to adopt the children.

400 persons may appeal assessment

STROUDSBURG — Formal appeals of the recent reassessment of real estate in Monroe County are slated to begin Sept. 5 before the Monroe County Commissioners acting as the county Board of Assessment Appeals.

Persons wishing to formally appeal their assessment have until Friday to get their application for a hearing in the mail.

So far, roughly 200 persons have filed for an appeal hearing and some 200 more are expected before deadline.

With 15 minutes set aside for each hearing, the county is already scheduled to listen to appeals through Sept. 21.

County officials question open space law in Monroe

By GARY GROSSMAN
Pocono Record Reporter

STROUDSBURG — Maneuverings on the political front in Pittsburgh and Harrisburg to have Pennsylvania's Act 515 "open space" law apply to Monroe County have raised some unanswered questions here at home.

While the county commissioners, at a convention in Pittsburgh, are urging their commissioner colleagues across the Commonwealth to support an expansion of Act 515, the county Tax Study Committee has expressed doubts as to how the law could be used in the county.

Because the open space act establishes a tax shelter for certain land qualifying as open space, the committee was asked by the commissioners to review the act and make some recommendation about its merits compared to similar legislation.

After discussion Monday the committee decided not to make any recommendations, expressing the belief the matter of open space laws might be better handled by the county planning commission.

Designed to preserve open space in urban counties, the law now applies to first through fourth class counties. Under its terms, certain quantities of land could receive reduced assessment after being placed in open space for five years.

A covenant between the county commissioners and the property owner would be required to place the land in open space.

At the behest of the Monroe County Commissioners state representatives from the local area have introduced an amendment to expand the law to include all counties in the Commonwealth.

But the language of the current law is what paralyzed the tax study committee and appears to raise questions among county planners.

The law states: "No land shall be subject to the provisions of this act unless designated as farm, forest, water supply, or open space in a plan adopted following a public hearing by the planning commission of the municipality, county or region. . . ."

Tuesday, two county planning officials interpreted the term "plan" in the law differently.

John Bitzer, chairman of the Planning Commission, after stipulating neither he nor the commission had studied the law thoroughly, said the "plan" referred to a comprehensive plan for land use.

The county does not have such a plan. Only eight of the 20 political subdivisions in the county have a comprehensive plan for land use.

Douglas Williams, county planning administrator, interpreted the term "plan" to mean a plan designed by the persons seeking to have their land declared open space.

"In lieu of planning, if it weren't for the astute use of these land owners, there would be more developments than there now are," Williams said.

He too believed the matter of Act 515 will be given closer attention by the county planning commission.

Another provision in the law stumped the county's tax study committee.

No land can be considered subject to the law "unless it is within an area of concentrated population defined by the Federal government as an urban area."

Perhaps only Stroudsburg and East Stroudsburg could be considered urban areas, depending on the federal agency making the classification.

Whatever the difficulties inherent in the terms of the law, the majority opinion of the tax study committee ran against taking more land in the county off the tax rolls or reducing the assessment.

As it stands now, the county is pressing for inclusion under a state law, and some county officials are uncertain about its applicability.

633 new voters register; Demos hold slight edge

STROUDSBURG — Some 633 new voters have been registered during the registration period preceeding the November election as the Monroe County Registar's Office is gearing for a special registration push beginning today.

Of the 633 registered since May 1, 315 are Democrats, 303 are Republicans and 115 are non-partisan.

County Registrar Mrs. Cherry Rahn said Monday the number placed on the rolls during this period can be expected to double before the presidential election Nov. 7.

During the last national campaign some 1,647 were added to the lists before election day, Mrs. Rahn said.

As of April 4, the county had 10,983 Democrats, 9,409 Republicans, 24 Constitutionalists, 312 non-partisans, 138 independents, four American Independents and no Socialist-Workers registered.

Mrs. Rahn said complete lists of the voting population in the county will be released throughout the pre-election registration period.

The first special registration outside the courthouse will be held from 2 to 9 p.m. at the West End Fair in Gilbert this Wednesday.

Workers spurn overtime, give firms headaches

BY JEFFREY A. TANNENBAUM
Dow Jones—Ottaway News Service

YORK, Pa. — Young Sam Lauchman loves hard work — but within limits.

When a key piece of equipment broke down recently at Medusa Corp.'s cement plant here, repairman Sam was asked to put in a few hours of overtime at premium pay. But the goateed 23-year-old who keeps a shiny gold pocket watch in his grimy work clothes, headed home instead.

"It was a Friday night," he explains. "Friday nights I like to go out. I have a girl friend."

Sam Lauchman's decision to reject overtime that Friday contributed to a major headache for Medusa. Plant officials say they wanted three or four men to work overtime for about five hours. However, all 15 members of that day's repair crew refused.

Two laborers supplied by an outside contractor finally made the repairs, and plant officials say the delay caused a sizable loss of cement production.

"A few years ago you never had a problem like this," says an angry and worried official at Medusa's headquarters in suburban Cleveland. "Men simply didn't refuse overtime work before."

Medusa's problem with overtime is in many ways typical of a troublesome trend at some industrial facilities throughout the country — even at plants, like Medusa, where overtime is mandatory under contracts. Blue-collar workers are losing their taste for longer hours, whatever the pay.

"People no longer seem to want to put in any extra time," says Morton Wyman, executive vice president and chief operating officer of American Greetings Corp., Cleveland, a manufacturer of greeting cards. He adds: "They use all kinds of excuses to get out of overtime. They've got more excuses than you've got hairs on your head."

Because more workers than ever before are refusing overtime at four different American Greeting plants, Wyman says, "we have to hire more people and buy more equipment, and that's more expensive than if we worked more people overtime."

So far, it's true, most companies have only infrequent problems with overtime. Most workers are still eager for premium pay.

Nontheless, enough problems are cropping up so that industrial managers are expressing anxiety about the future.

They figure that as the economy picks up steam and the orders roll in, more overtime will be needed. Thus they fear more instances in which workers balk.

Behind overtime rejection are a variety of factors. In some cases workers refuse to work longer hours because they don't need the extra pay. Others are giving priority to leisure activities.

Still others have less loyalty to employers than their co-workers have, or less tolerance for grueling work. And some workers with general morale problems refuse overtime as a means of getting back at their employers.

Wickham Skinner, a professor of business administration at Harvard and a consultant to industry, says workers place a growing priority on leisure time largely because these days they have "a fundamentally different ethic about what a person ought to do with his life. The typical worker is less anxious to work overtime because he's more anxious to get away from the job."

Increased hatred of grueling jobs is a major element, says Roy Walters, president of a consulting firm based in New Jersey. "The reason so many workers are refusing overtime," he says, "is that there's a lot of dull, boring, routine, monotonous work."

Work was just as dull in the past, says Frederick Herzberg, a professor of management at the University of Utah and an expert on industrial psychology; however, the typical worker then "would bear his life on a Mickey Mouse job and gather his psychological income from social traditions, ethnic traditions, religious traditions and family traditions."

But with many traditions breaking down, he adds, more workers are discontented with their lives as a whole and thus are more likely to be discontented with jobs. Younger workers in particular, he says, feel "no personal obligation for productivity, work quality or work discipline."

At the same time, of course, much of the economic incentive to work overtime is diminished. "The more we do for our guys in terms of wages and fringe benefits, the less there's a need for them to work overtime," says a United Automobile Workers spokesman in Detroit.

Still, many workers are heavily in debt and welcome overtime. One such is Gary Wallace, 24, of Ford Motor's plant in Lorain, Ohio, where Torinos, Mercury Montegos and Econoline vans are assembled. "If I personally didn't get overtime pay, I'd probably starve to death or go bankrupt," Wallace says. "If I couldn't get the extra pay here, I'd have to get a second job."

Here in York, the 15 men who refused overtime on that recent Friday all have their reasons. Sam Lauchman owns a snowmobile and a 14-foot motorboat, and he prefers any number of activities to weekend work. Robert L. Border, 51, says he avoids overtime because "I'm a whole lot older now." He explains: "When you work around cement kilns, it just sweats everything out of you. Eight hours of work in this heat and filth is enough."

There's little doubt, however, that a general morale problem was involved. In recent months the Medusa plant has been operating at capacity, officials say, and bosses have been pressing harder than ever for productivity gains.

Among other recent changes, officials say, foremen have cut back on workers' coffee breaks and are generally watching the men more closely. Says Donald A. Schena, plant manager: "Things were getting kind of lax, so we've had to clamp down."

That's an understatement, one veteran worker maintains. In contrast to a few years ago, he contends, "there's no respect at all shown to the men here. The foremen are always cursing. Morale is at an all-time low." As a result, he adds, workers do far less to prevent equipment breakdowns, and they resist working overtime to fix the equipment, all as a way to get even.

At other places, such as Ford's huge plant in Mahwah, N.J., where Galaxies, LTDs and light trucks are assembled, working conditions and refusals to work overtime are closely linked. During a recent summer hot spell, when truck-assembly workers were scheduled for 10-hour work turns instead of the usual eight, the more militant workers demanded that the overtime hours be canceled.

David P. Gardner, vice president of Local 906 of the UAW, says the temperature in the plant reached 110 degrees. After working the normal eight hours in such heat he says "a man finds his overalls are usually wringing wet and he's uncomfortable and it's an unbearable thing."

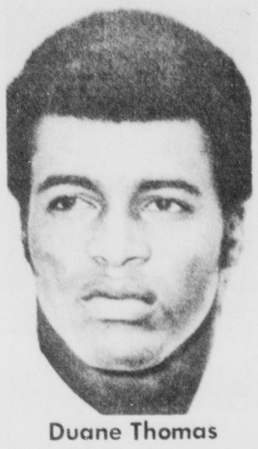
Thomas suspended, fined by Chargers



Duane Thomas

SAN DIEGO (UPI) —The San Diego Chargers suspended absentee running back Duane Thomas Tuesday and imposed a running fine of $150 a day.

"Duane Thomas was told to report to training camp by 6 o'clock Monday," coach Harland Svare said. "He failed to report. He is suspended without compensation. He will be fined $150 each day he is absent."

Thomas, acquired by the Chargers from Dallas in a trade for wide receiver Billy Parks and running back Mike Montgomery July 31, was seen visiting the Charger pre-season training camp at Irvine, Calif. on occasion but had not practiced or played.

"The Chargers have been patient with Duane and have given him ample time to clear up any personal matters," Svare said. "We don't know if he wants to play or not, but his period of grace is over.

"I said at the time of the trade for Duane that it was a gamble, and it was a roll of the dice. Whatever the outcome, I'm not going to look back. We have a good football team to get ready for the season. Time moves on."

Dallas traded Thomas to the New England Patriots last year but reacquired him after he had problems with the Patriots coach.

The San Diego trade had no conditions.

Petchel to retire as Pen Argyl grid coach

By CHUCK FIERSON
Record Sports Editor

PEN ARGYL — Confirming what has been generally known for some time, Elwood Petchel said Tuesday this will be his last season as head football coach at Pen Argyl High School.

"Unless something happens," the dean of area coaches said, "this will be my last season as coach." He added he will continue to teach at Pen Argyl.

Petchel, who will complete his 12th season at Pen Argyl, said he plans to spend his Saturdays starting next year following the football career of his son, Woody, now a freshman at Penn State.

The elder Petchel, himself a star at Penn State in the late 1940s, said his son, who set two state career records last year, is already the third tailback on the varsity team and is running back kickoffs.

"We hope that Woody is good enough to make the traveling team," Petchel said. "Right now it looks pretty good. If he does we'll spend our afternoons watching him."

Petchel came to Pen Argyl from a school near Steubenville, Ohio, in 1961. In his first season the Green Knights won the Lehigh-Northampton League championship. They tied for the title in 1963 and won it again last year.

Looking back on his career at Pen Argyl, Petchel, who played Doak Walker to a virtual standoff in Penn State's 13-13 Cotton Bowl appearance in 1948, said simply he "enjoyed it."

"I've worked with tremendous kids," he went on. "They've known they were the smallest school as far as size and available talent. But they've put forth a tremendous effort.

"We've had good material to work with, both on the line and in the backfield. Some of the backfield people got more recognition, but we've had some fine linemen."

For the last four years Petchel has coached his son, who set state standards by rushing for 4,606 career yards and scoring 540 points. But the father-coach didn't look at it with any conflict.

"It might have been a problem," he pointed out, "if he (Woody) didn't put out. He knew he had to be better than anyone else to play. But I think knowing this made him better.

"If a coach has a son who plays football, I would recommend him playing. I think there is more enjoyment in it for the coach and it forces the son to put out more.

"Of course, it's pretty hard on the mother. I don't really know how she could have sat in the stands and put up with some of the comments she must have heard. But all in all I'd certainly do it again."

Although Petchel, who also put Bob Parsons, a Penn State graduate into pro football with the Chicago Bears, said he did not feel any pressure coaching his son, he admitted Woody might have felt some.

"Because he was the coach's son," the father said, "he had to work that much harder and had to be that much more eager to prove himself. But he could not be too eager.

"Once he established himself, the other players looked up to him. They looked at him as a good football player, not as the coach's son."

Yankees split; fall to fourth

NEW YORK (UPI) — Ted Ford's 12th home run of the season and second of the night launched a four-run Texas rally in the seventh inning of the nightcap as the Rangers snapped a five-game losing streak with a 7-4 victory over New York after the Yankees won the opener, 7-6, in 11 innings.

Ford, who had a three-run homer in the opener, greeted Ron Klimkowksi, the third Yankee pitcher, with his lead-off shot to left field.

Dick Billings was safe on Celerino Sanchez' error and singles by Frank Howard, Tom Grieve and pinch-hitter Larry Biittner followed to account for two more runs and brought Wade Blasingame on in relief of Klimkowski. Grieve scored the fourth run of the inning on a fielder's choice play.

Mike Kekich started for the Yankees and for the sixth straight time failed to post his 11th victory as he was kayoed in the fifth.

The Rangers scored a run in the third on a walk, a bunt single and two hit batsmen and added two more in the fourth on singles by Grieve, Tom Ragland and Jim Mason, plus a forceout.

Johnny Callison led off the fourth with a single and Bobby Murcer hit his 24th homer, also his second of the night, into the New York bullpen. With two out, Johnny Ellis singled and Sanchez tripled him home to tie the score.

Callison hit his seventh home run of the year off of Paul Lindblad in the home half of the seventh to account for the fourth Yankee run.

The Yankees, trailing 6-2 in the seventh inning of the opener, rallied to score three times and gained a 6-6 tie when Murcer led off the ninth with a home run that allowed him to hit for the cycle for the first time in his career. Callison singled off loser Horacio Pina behind walks to Ron Blomberg and Bernie Allen in the 11th to

May's ninth inning homer gives Houston 2-1 victory

HOUSTON (UPI)—Lee May led off the last of the ninth inning with his 27th homer into "May's alley" in left centerfield Tuesday night to snap a 1-1 deadlock and give the Houston Astros a 2-1 triumph over the Philadelphia Phillies.

May hit the homer off relief pitcher Mac Scarce, who had just entered the game. The drive would have hit the wall last year but it cleared the special fence the Astros constructed to give May, obtained in a winter deal with Cincinnati, a better shot at hitting homers.

Cesar Cedeno accounted for the Astros' other run when he homered with one out in the sixth with a shot that would have also been a homer last year.

Philadelphia scored its lone run in the seventh inning to tie the game 1-1 on a single by Don Money, a fielder's choice and a pinch single by Oscar Gamble.

It was the Astros' second straight triumph under new manager Leo Durocher.

Smith backs Tiant in Bosox victory

BOSTON (UPI) — Reggie Smith drove in two runs with a pair of doubles and scored another Tuesday night while Luis Tiant tossed his third straight shutout with a five-hitter to give the Boston Red Sox a 3-0 victory over the Chicago White Sox.

The Red Sox jumped on Chicago starter Tom Bradley for a 2-0 lead in the first inning as Smith doubled into the leftfield corner to score Carl Yastrzemski from first and then scored himself on Carlton Fisk's single to center.

Tiant opened the fifth with a single to left, went to second on Tommy Harper's sacrifice and gave the Red Sox a 3-0 margin when Smith bounced a double into the rightfield stands.

The White Sox failed to get a man as far as third base off Tiant, who recorded his fifth straight win to run his season record to 9-4. Tiant struck out four batters and walked only one.

Grich drives in five runs as Baltimore beats Twins

BLOOMINGTON (UPI)—Bobby Grich drove in five runs Tuesday night, four on a fifth-inning grand slam homer, to power the Baltimore Orioles to a 9-4 victory over the Minnesota Twins.

Mike Cuellar, who drove in two of the Orioles runs, gave up only four hits, three of them in the first inning when the Twins took a 3-0 lead on home runs by Harmon Killebrew and Bobby Darwin.

Grich homered with none out after Minnesota starter and loser Jim Perry gave up singles to Brooks Robinson and Boog Powell, then walked Terry Crowley. Grich's 11th homer of the season went 373 feet into the rightfield bleachers and knocked Perry out of the box.

Killebrew's homer, with one aboard, was the 536th of his career and tied him with Mickey Mantle for fourth place on the all-time list, behind Babe Ruth, Hank Aaron and Willie Mays. Killebrew, who also walked twice, had been out of the lineup since August 19th because of a foot injury.

Darwin followed Killebrew with his 19th homer but Cuellar got the next two batters and didn't allow another hit until the eighth when pinch-hitter Rick Renick hit a solo homer.

The Orioles picked up two runs in the second when Crowley singled and Grich tripled him home. Grich scored on Johnny Oates' sacrifice fly.

Powell drove in the third run with a single in the third and Cuellar, who won his 14th game against 10 defeats, drove in two runs with a bases-loaded single in the eighth.

Home runs power Mets past Reds

CINCINNATI (UPI)—Home runs by Ken Boswell, Tommie Agee and Ed Kranepool powered the New York Mets to a 3-0 victory Tuesday night over the Cincinnati Reds.

The homers were three of five hits Jack Billingham yielded while suffering his 11th loss against 10 victories. The solo homers by Boswell and Kranepool came in the fourth inning and ended a string of 24 scoreless innings for Billingham, who struck out 10.

Jim McAndrew, notching his 10th victory against five losses, restricted the Reds to five hits before being lifted in favor of Tug McGraw with two out in the ninth.

Two of the hits off McAndrew were delivered by Pete Rose, giving the 10-year veteran a career total of 1,880, one shy of the Reds' club record held by Vada Pinson.

McAndrew yielded a two-out walk to Johnny Bench and when Tony Perez followed with a single, McGraw made his 38th appearance of the season.

McGraw walked Denis Menke before inducing pinchhitter Hal McRae to loft an easy fly to John Milner in left for the final out. The save was McGraw's 19th this season.

Billingham had pitched three straight complete games, all victories, going into Tuesday's game. He had won six of his last seven decisions.

Stargell explodes in Pirates' win

PITTSBURGH (UPI)—Willie Stargell slammed his third home run in two days and drove in two runs Tuesday night as the Pittsburgh Pirates edged the San Diego Padres, 5-3.

Steve Blass grabbed his 15th win against six losses but needed relief help from Dave Giusti in the eighth inning. Giusti picked up his 20th save in a game marred by eight errors.

The Padres took a 1-0 lead in the second inning on singles by Nate Colbert and Derrel Thomas, sandwiched around a throwing error by catcher Manny Sanguillen on Colbert's steal of second. A triple by Richie Hebner and Sanguillen's single tied it in the same inning.

Singles by Al Oliver and Roberto Clemente and Stargell's sacrifice fly—his 100th run batted in—gave the Pirates a 2-1 lead in the third. Doubles by Sanguillen and Gene Alley, an error and Vic Davalillo's single made it 4-1 in the fourth.

San Diego cut the margin to 4-3 in the fifth on a walk to losing pitcher Mike Corkins, Leron Lee's double and Clarence Gaston's single, but Stargell ripped his 31st homer in the seventh.

Aaron hits 665th, but Atlanta loses

ATLANTA (UPI)—Ken Singleton hit two homers to offset two Atlanta homers, including one by Hank Aaron, and the Montreal Expos took advantage of a two-run error by Marty Perez to edge the Braves 4-3 Tuesday night.

Singleton hit solo homers in the fourth and seventh innings and the Expos added two unearned runs in the fifth to hand Jim Hardin his first loss after three victories.

Aaron cut the Atlanta deficit to 3-1 in the fifth inning with his 26th homer of the year and 665th of his career, leaving him 49 behind Babe Ruth's career record.

After Singleton's second blast, his 11th of the year, Earl Williams hit his 22nd for Atlanta following a double by Dusty Baker leading off the eighth inning. That drove starter Balor Moore out of the game and Tom Walker earned his first save by getting the final six outs. Moore's record is now 6-6.

The Expos' unearned runs came after leadoff singles by Bob Bailey and Hector Torres. Rico Carty made a throwing error on Torres' hit, allowing the runners to move up a base.

SHAWNEE-ON-DELAWARE — Marion Scott is the new champion of Shawnee Women's Golf Assn. after beating Lee Maggio in the final of the championship flight.

In reaching the top, Mrs. Scott defeated Laurie Newcomb and Betty Ahnert, last year's champion, who gained the semi-finals in her win over Polly Sofoul. Lee Maggio had a first-round win over Barbara Garland and a second round win over Edna Pierson, who had defeated Martha Pullen.

Dee Christine was the winner of Flight "B", having defeated Lillian Bostick in the final and Katie Cullen in the semi-finals, which Mrs. Cullen gained with a win over Sally Dolly.

Kathie Butler was the Flight "C" winner, defeating Harriet Eiche and Briget Karch.

Barbara Garland went on to win the consolation round of the defeated four in championship flight and Dottie Paukovitch in first flight consolation.

A consolation tournament was held Tuesday for those who had not won a tournament during the season. Donna Weichel was low net with a 70 with Marion Scott second low net. Doris Markham had low net with 90 for class "A"; Martha Pullen, 99, for class "B" and Lillian Bostick for class "C."

Donna Weichel and Joyce Obermeyer tied for low putts with 31 and Carol Williams won the associate putting prize.

Pleasant Valley coach pessimistic

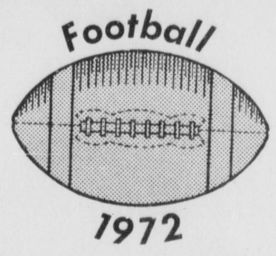
By JOE MIEGOC
Pocono Record Reporter

BRODHEADSVILLE — Coming off its best record ever, 5-5 last season, Pleasant Valley High School may be in for some reversals this season.

"I am not at all pleased with the turnout for football this season," says head coach Steve Kun. "We have a varsity squad numbering only 21 players. We usually have more and, due to our finest season last year, I thought we'd have a large turnout. But things haven't picked up," added the coach.

The Bears will return just six seniors from last season's squad, with one of them, Glen Hawk, moving into the quarterback slot from offensive end. Joining him in the backfield will be another letterman and former end, Faron Frey, who made second team Lehigh-Northampton League Southern Division last season.

"We have a lot of building to do and not much experience to do it with. We have five sophomores coming up, but it's hard to gauge just what they'll be able to add to the team," added Kun, who said his team last season used only 13 or 14 players the majority of the time, forcing them to play both ways.



"One sophomore, Dan Marchese, looks like he might be a starting and linebacker, but I'm not sure right now. Besides him, the only one I can count on are Kurt Arner, Hawk, Frey, Chris Fisher and maybe Kip Latzko, who are all returning lettermen. Besides, Latzko is out with a knee injury, so we're not too sure about him, either," said Kun.

Last season, said Kun, the team suffered a bit because of its lack of depth, which may have caused it to lose some games late in the latter stages. "We're a small school and when we play against these bigger schools, we're just outmanned. We have to play our guys all the way and the other team can run in different platoons," he commented.

"Our kids are in great shape and we make them work hard to keep in shape, but if we hit a big team with a lot of players, they have us in a bind. We're probably the smallest team sizewise in the league," noted Kun.

The Bears will be forced to try inexperienced players at possibly five or six positions on offense alone, which Kun says could spell trouble. With Latzko out with an injury and Frey and Hawk moving into the backfield, the team needs to develop a whole new offensive line.

"Fisher will be back on the line and maybe Marchese, but after that we'll have to develop a new line. The kids we'll have to use really need experience,but the only way for them to get it is to play. One kid, Rich Price, has good size and we think he can really help us at the tackle slot on offense and defense. After him, I don't know," added the coach.

Kun also says his team's lack of size will be a problem in the league, which houses such teams as East Stroudsburg, Salisbury and Southern Lehigh, all of which Kun used as examples of "big teams." But he has hopes the rigorous conditioning program will reap dividends.

"We keep our team in top shape and their condition could help us in some critical situations. Last season, we just died late in some games and it cost us the game. This year, we're training hard to possibly avoid that," said Kun.

"If we can develop strength, which is necessary no matter what size you are, and speed to go with the desire of our players, I think we'll do all right. If you don't have the desire or strength, size means nothing to a football team. You could have huge linemen who are just big and they could hurt you because they're slow or don't feel like playing," he added.

"Optimism" is a seldom-used word by the head coach these days, but a trace of it still can be detected in his outlook for the upcoming season.

"We're looking forward to the season. If we all stay healthy and can help ourselves while we gain experience, I think we can do all right. With some luck and desire here and there, I think we can do as well as we did last season. I'm not saying we'll have a terrific team, but if we work hard enough, who knows what will happen. I think we'll win our share," he said.

The schedule:

Sept. 9	at Northwestern
Sept. 15	E. Stroudsburg
Sept. 22	Marian Catholic

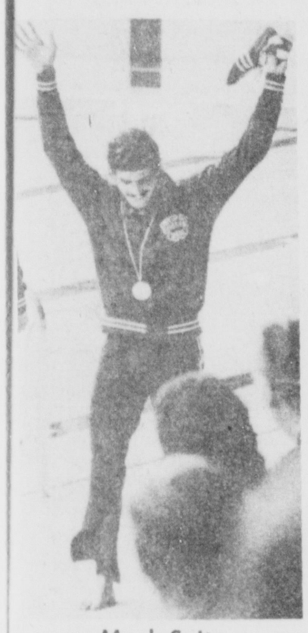
Spitz wins third Olympic gold medal



Mark Spitz

MUNICH (UPI)—Mark Spitz extended his Olympic gold medal and world swimming record streak to three Tuesday when he won the 200-meter freestyle but Shane Gould of Australia saw her dream of a record gold harvest vanish in the 100-meter freestyle.

Spitz, the 22-year-old native of Carmichael, Calif., who some call the greatest swimmer in history, reenforced that argument when he won the 200-meter freestyle in 1:52.8, rallying on the final turn to best teammate Steve Genter of Lakewood, Calif.

Miss Gould came to these Olympics with the idea of winning five individual golds and one other in the relays, but Sandra Neilson of El Monte, Calif., swimming the best race of her career, put the dream to rest when she came on to win the 100 freestyle in the Olympic record time of 58.6 seconds.

Shirley Babashoff of Fountain Valley, Calif., thought to be America's best in the event, finished second in 59 flat and Miss Gould, who won the 200-meter individual medley in world record time Monday, was third in 59.1.

In all, the United States picked up seven swimming medals Tuesday and increased its Games total in that sport alone to 13.

In other events, the Yank waterpolo team scored its third victory without a loss, 8-1, over Canada; the basketball team made it three in-a-row and 58 straight in Olympic competition with a 67-48 win over Cuba; freestyle wrestlers won seven of nine matches, and three of five rowing crews advanced to the semifinals through high placings in repechage heats.

Dwight Jones of the University of Houston scored 18 points despite suffering a groin injury midway through the first half to feature the basketball triumph over Cuba.

Otherwise, Italy's Angelo Scalazone won the trap shooting gold medal with a world record 199 hits out of 200 possible changes; the Soviet Union picked up the gold medal in 62 mile team road cycling; Bulgaria's Norai Nourikian won the gold medal in featherweight weightlifting with a total hoist of 887 pounds, and Japan won a gold medal in men's gymnastic team competition with 571.25 points.

The United States failed to advance anyone in men's foil fencing, light middleweight boxer Reggie Jones of Newark, N.J., dropped a controversial decision to Russia's European champ as fans showered the ring with garbage, and the American soccer team suffered its first loss, 3-0, to Malaysia.

There were two other swimming finals on Tuesday's program. Roland Matthes of East Germany successfully defended his Olympic 100-meter backstroke title with a Games record 56.6 clocking in one and Beverlay Whitfield of Australia, who couldn't believe she was the winner, took the women's 200-meter breaststroke in the Games record time of 2:41.7 in the other.

Genter's time in the 200 freestyle was 1:53.7 and Werner Lampe of West Germany was third in 1:54.0.

Mike Stamm of San Diego, Calif., was second to Matthes in the 100 back in 57.7 and John Murphy of Hinsdale, Ill., was third in 58.3.

Dana Schoenfield of Anaheim, Calif., picked up America's seventh medal of the day when she finished second to Miss Whitfield in the 200 breast in 2:42.0. Galina Stepanova of Russia, the big favorite in the race and the leader after three touches, wound up third in 59.1.

Spitz, disappointed four years ago at Mexico City when he failed to win a single individual gold medal, is shooting for seven this year. His other golds here were in the 200 butterfly and the 400-meter freestyle relay.

Genter made a strong race of it against Spitz and was ahead of Mark until they touched for the last time. As they came up for the run home, Spitz was in front by a couple of strokes and he kept the margin the rest of the way.

"I passed a milestone in my career Monday," Spitz said. "With my victory Tuesday I have broken 31 world records. Now, I think I can relax."

Genter's strong showing in some ways was more impressive than Spitz' victory. Only four days before the race he was in bed with a collapsed lung and doctors were saying he had little or no chance of competing.

"They were pessimistic, but I wasn't," Genter said. "Now, I do feel a little tired."

Miss Neilson found it hard to believe she was a gold medal winner.

"It feels good but I don't believe it," she said. "I'm so excited."

The water polo team, which scrambled in the final minute to beat Romania and Cuba, had an easier time of it Tuesday, routing Canada, 8-1.

In wrestling, bantamweight Richard Sanders of Lakeview, Ore., and lightweight Dan Gable of Waterloo, Iowa, extended their records to a perfect 3-0. Paperweight Sergio Gonzalez of Venice, Calif., won his first match after drawing in the first two.

Meanwhile, flyweight James Carr of Erie, Pa., and featherweight Gene Davis of Oklahoma City, Okla., were beaten. Carr stands 1-1-1 and Davis is 1-0-2.

In rowing, things looked up for the Yanks after they advanced only two boats on Monday. The fours with coxswain won a repechage heat Tuesday, the pairs without coxswain was second and Jim Dietz of New York City advanced by winning his heat of the single sculls.

A Frenchman and an Italian finished behind Scalazone in the trap shooting final.

Spitz: More gold in Munich hills

MUNICH (UPI) —Mark Spitz modestly admitted he's in search of more gold after winning his third Olympic gold medallion in two days and young Sandra Neilson was exuberant in her sensational upset over Australian swimming star Shane Gould

"I have swum two days and I have been fortunate enough to win three times," Spitz said after winning the 200-meter freestyle in the world record time 1:52.8. "I'm swimming four more times and I'll try to do my best."

Spitz, whose exposure to the press is measured by team leaders with a stop watch, refused again to make any direct predictions about his future events.

"I feel in the last four years I've swum a lot better than I did leading up to Mexico," said the 22-year-old dental student from Carmichael, Calif. "I feel great and I feel rested. I'm very happy. It's taken me seven years to do this, not that I counted on doing what I've done so far."

Spitz said he was proud of teammate Steve Genter of Lakewood, Calif., who led at the middle two turns and wound up second after suffering a collapsed lung four days before the race.

"Steve had a little problem earlier in the week and he swam the best race I think he could," Spitz said.

In response to a query as to whether he was afraid of Genter, Spitz said:

"I'm afraid of everybody."

Miss Neilson, who upset teammate Shirley Babashoff of Fountain Valley, Calif., and Miss Gould, the world record holder, in the women's 100-meter freestyle, provided a perfect putdown when she was asked her feelings of Shane.

"She's a girl just like us," the 16-year-old youngster from El Monte, Calif., said of the 15-year-old Australian, who was seeking five individual gold medals here.

Otherwise, Miss Neilson, who had finished only third in the U.S. trials, was too excited to say much of anything else except that she was excited.

"I'm so excited now, I just feel great," she responded to a question about how she felt beating Miss Gould. "I don't know. I'm just real excited."

Sandra, who is also entered on the U.S. women's 400-meter freestyle relay team, said she felt she could win the race.

"I knew I could do it," she said "I tried as hard as I could. I just wanted to get out there ahead of them and do it."

Miss Gould said her slow start might have hurt her.

"I was only a half second slower than the winner," she said. "It might have made the difference. I don't think I was sharp enough. I didn't have the edge.

But she said her confidence was not shaken.

Jack O'Brian's

New York's Voice of Broadway

NEW YORK — His pals suspect the announced wedding date for Dean Martin and Kathy Hawn is a moveable feast — moved back. . . The Plaza Hotel's Persian Room, definitive stylish hotel cafe of all time, has given up the chic ghost: it'll feature uncelebrated rock groups etc . . . Horrors! A movie star preparing a tidy tome: Ben Gazzara's wife, Janice Rule, is writing a cookbook . . . You can count the society-background stars on the cuticle of one finger (Jane Wyatt — and we're stopped): Cliff Robertson parked cars at the Stock Club, Geraldine Page parked hats at Lindy's, Burt Reynolds was a bouncer at Roseland; that's more the retroactive rule.

Screen Gems will finance the TV pilot for a series starring Lou Jacobi, a protean character clown . . . His "Laugh-In" capers did it . . . Lou's so good, fine character actor Sam Levene started losing roles (which were described in theory as "Sam Levene parts") to Lou; ultimately Sam got so irked at Lou's displacement that he wouldn't even agree with us that Jacobi is a marvelously funny man: "He's loud," was as far as Sam would go.

Marguerite Chapman, career abeyant after a long starring flurry decades ago, is ready for any Bdwy. role she thinks is good. . . Not all kids attend rock fests: Kathe Duhaime, 21, will have 24 of her contemporary paintings hung at Bloomingdale's starting Sept. 30, youngest in that huge store's parade of expert daubers . . . Art Carney's triumph in "Prisoner of 2nd Ave." is complete — every reviewer saluted his excellence . . . Decadent America isn't finger-pointed so much in Russia, where up to 30 per cent of its workers don't show up day after payday: Booze.

Phil Silvers' stroke closing "Funny Thing Happened on the Way to the Forum" made that marvelous revival a fiscal disaster: lost $330,000 on an investment of $280,000 (how'd they do that?) . . . "The Women" cost about $50,000 for Max Gordon to produce in 1936; its scheduled revival is budgeted at $325,000 and will star Rosemary Harris, finest young Bdwy. actress, directed by Ellis Rabb, who once was (so civilized!) wed to Rosemary . . . Anthony Newley's new musical, "Good Old, Bad Old Days," which was announced to open next season on Bdwy. won't.

For playing Mary Todd Lincoln in the imminent "Abraham's Mask," Eva Marie Saint will get a guaranteed $3,000 a week against 7½ per cent of the gross until the show pays off, then a straight 10 per cent . . . Julie Harris gets even better pay and perks as the same Mrs. Abe in "The Last of Mrs. Lincoln," which opens a month earlier, in Oct. . . Julie will get $3,500, Variety reports, against a straight 10 per cent of the gross plus another 5 per cent of the operating profits, if any; plus a chauffeured limousine between home & theater.

Perry Como's $125,000 a week at the Las Vegas Int'l has been the champ salary but the competition out there is hot as the desert and the lid is being lifted to $150,000 . . . Variety's price hops a dime to 60 cents Oct. 4. . . Olympic rules call for Munich banning all cigaret ads on billboards, so "The Godfather" made them an offer they couldn't refuse and the Puzo smash will be smeared all over them. . . . The unhappy hooker, Xaviera Hollander, wants to title her next book with an unsubtle obscenity but it'll be called "X Madam X"; the wages of sin is fame, these days.

The porno-parade marches on and down: twenty N.Y. "nice" neighborhood movie mosques now form a circuit that will show openly admitted filth flicks; Gresham's Law holds — the bad drives out the good . . . It's in anticipation of the upcoming TV year wherein dozens of recent films have been bought for the home screens . . You wonder if current R- and X-rated movies ever will get to TV: when "Lolita" first was released its ads screamed "One Picture You'll Never See on Television!" . . . It got there, of course . . . The new pay-TV systems openly admit they will offer R- and X-rated flicks.

Benny Goodman phoned Lionel Hampton to a fish fry: Benny hooked a huge catch on his Nova Scotia vacation . . . Benihana of Tokyo owner Rocky Aoki backed two Bdwy. shows last season and both flopped. This year the show he's backing is guaranteed not to return him a penny: the Parks Dep't "Asian Festival," which Rocky's financing entirely by his Oriental self.

Mets 3rd baseman Jim Fregosi spent hours without press agenting his presence at the N.Y. Hospital's Children's Clinic. Gave out 100 tickets to the kids, bought by Mrs. Stephen Goodyear, a volunteer there.

Jane Fonda's taking dancing lessons. War dance? . . . The N.Y. Taxi & Limousine Commission instituted a lost & found dep't a year ago and it's turned up some dozzies: Ming vase stuffed with $4,800 in cash (yes, a cabdriver turned it in!); false teeth, birth control pills, sables and minks, Hubert Humphrey's Presidential-campaign notebooks; Ethel Kennedy's tote bag wasn't turned in . . . The false teeth belonged to a female movie star of the 30s. "Paid $4,000 for them," she bragged.

Ann Landers

Love wanted

Dear Ann Landers: Your advice to the wife who was extremely affectionate to her husband was excellent. It seems he pushed her away on occasion and hurt her feelings.She wanted to know if she should turn over a new leaf and not go near him unless he indicated that he wanted her. You told her to continue to be affectionate, but to use better judgment — that perhaps her timing was poor. Then you added, "Some men are simply not able to be aggressive."

I realize the grass is always greener, but how I wish my wife would demonstrate some affection. She is a fine person, an excellent cook and housekeeper, but our love life is anemic. She will respond only if requested to do so and then she lets me know she is doing me a favor.

I have known for a long time that my wife gets nothing out of our sex life and I have suggested we see a doctor. Her answer: "Sex is not important to me. I couldn't talk to a third party about anything so intimate."

This woman's positive traits outweigh the negative 10 to one, so I figure I can live with this. But I confess, I read that lady's letter signed "Too much In Love" with a great deal of envy.

O. City

Dear O.: You and hundreds of others. Thanks for writing.

Dear Ann Landers: A coworker and I are writing this letter in the hope you will settle a disagreement we are having with one of the management employes in our office.

W.A.R. is under the impression that all the letters written to you are made up by you and members of your staff. I, however, find it difficult to believe that you have the time or imagination to sit at a desk all day and make up letters.

Would you kindly print this letter and clarify the situation.

D.S.O. in Jacksonville, Florida

Dear D.S.O.: The finest novelist in the world couldn't make up the letters you read in this column. What goes on in people's lives is far more interesting than anything I could invent.

My dilemma is not a scarcity of letters, but rather an abundance from which to choose. If, out of 1,000 letters a day, I couldn't find three worth printing, I'd turn in my typewriter.

Dear Ann Landers: I am nearly in a state of shock. For years I thought I had a pretty good speaking voice. In fact I had even considered going into radio. The other day, for the first time, I heard my voice played back on a tape recorder. It was a harrowing experience. My voice is shrill and unpleasant — at least it seemed so to me. Now I wonder if I sound that way to others. Do you think I am exaggerating all this in my mind? Please answer.

Rusty Pipes and Assaulted Eardrums

Dear Rusty and Assaulted: Almost everyone is shocked when he hears his own voice played back. When I first heard my voice on my daily NBC radio show I cringed at the hard, midwestern twang, but I stopped fretting about it after several listeners wrote to say it was distinctive and they liked it. No one can be totally objective about himself. Forget it.

Erma Bombeck

No relation

I was reading a story about a teacher in California who was under censure because he frightened his students with a boa constrictor, sneaked out for cigarettes leaving his class unattended, was tardy neglected to notify parents whose children were failing in class, failed to properly respond to supervision and had dandruff.

Granted, no one's perfect, but it did seem like he would be happier in another profession . . . like hosting "Truth or Consequences."

"I think he sounds pretty neat," said my son. "Those things aren't so bad. I can think of a lot worse things a teacher could do."

"Like what?" I asked.

"Like the first day of school when a teacher is calling the roll and he asks you if you're the brother of some kid with the same last name."

"So?"

"And you are."

"That's bad?" I asked.

"It's awful," he said. "Then the teacher always looks at you and says something like, Why aren't you as tall as your brother? Or, I hope you're going to volunteer like your brother did, or something dumb like that. Kids who never pay attention always listen on the first day of school and they never forget it."

I hadn't thought about that in a long time, but you know something? He's right. I followed in a pair of large tracks blazed by an older sister. At least 50 times the first day of school I heard, "I hope you are going to be as smart as your sister."

I cannot begin to tell you the burden it created.

They expected me to carry a pencil to each class. They expected me to keep awake during the entire period. I had to have my gym clothes washed every six months whether they needed it or not. I had to figure 6 plus 4 in my head. (I was only 15). I had to explain to my parents what checkmarks were on the left side of the report card.

I became so competitive I couldn't do anything right. When I tried to sell my homework to my classmates, the entire eighth grade failed and was retained for a full year.

I guess what it amounts to is that when you start each school year it's like being reborn. So, this year, teachers, when you see a familiar name on your roll, look kindly at those eyes pleading for anonymity and recall to mind a poster which hangs in my sons' bedroom. It's the classic from Father Flanagan's Boys Town showing a small boy carrying his brother on his back and saying, "He's not heavy, Father, he's my Brother."

The quote is pencilled out and in its place is scribbled, "He's my brother and he weighs a ton!"

TUES. - SAT. 7:30 P.M.
SUNDAYS
10:45 A.M. & 7:30 P.M.

Evangelist George Butrin will give his "Mini-Sermon" on dope addiction titled "The Lion In The Streets". He will describe in detail the disastrous physical, mental and eternal consequences that go with dope addiction. His message will be followed by a tape recording of 19 year old Craig Gardner of Salt Lake City, Utah, who committed suicide while taking L.S.D. but spoke his thoughts into a tape recorder just prior to ending his life.

The Evangelist will issue Pledge Cards for young people between the ages of 8 and 25 to sign. He already has had hundreds of young people in his Crusades sign the pledge and hopes to obtain 10,000 signatures.

Teen Forum

She's no tramp

By Jean Adams

MISTAKES: (Q.) I am 15 and I am pretty cute. I used to go out with a lot of guys. I let them do anything they wanted to. I quit because the other kids started calling me a tramp. Do you think I am a tramp?

Criticized in Connecticut

(A.) No. You made some mistakes but you woke up to the fact that they were mistakes and now you are not making them.

There are many, many happy wives and mothers who made your mistake when they were teen-agers but found out in time that what they were doing was not the right thing to do.

I'm glad you found out in time. It will take some more time for the other teen-agers to see by your actions and your attitude that you have changed. When they do see, the name calling will stop. In the meantime just smile and walk forward with your head up.

SMILES: (Q.) I have tried to forget this guy by going out with other guys, but I can't, because I love him. We have never talked, but I see him at dances with other girls and he smiles at me. He looks as if he would like to say "Hi" to me and talk to me. He looks as if he might be kind of sad because I am dancing with another guy. How can I tell if he love me?

—In Love in Texas

(A.) You are putting a lot of weight into a smile. I believe if this boy really loved you he would do more than smile. I believe he would walk up to you and say "Hi".

There is nothing to keep you from making a move yourself. One night try saying "Hello" to him and being friendly If your gesture gets positive results, good. If not, mark him off your list. You already know that other boys will meet you halfway. Be friendly to them. Concentrate on them.

Tourists and local folks flock to the Casino Theater in Mount Pocono for summertime entertainment. Fifty years ago, the story was much the same only people went to the establishment to dance.

Casino Night Club long gone

Movies replace dance band

BY RUTH VINCE
Pocono Record Reporter

MOUNT POCONO — The billboard in front of the Casino Night Club in Mount Pocono reads — Eddie Gilligan and his 12 piece band! Appearing for the season! Guest Bands! Dancing 'till the wee hours!

The year 1922. The night club is no more but the memories linger on.

Built by the McCarthy brothers in 1922 the Casino had no heat, therefore only stayed open from Memorial Day through Labor Day, the peak of the tourist season.

The club had one of the finest dance floors. The ceiling was decorated with bamboo rods. Stately archways opened to the tables along the side of the ballroom. Japanese lanterns were hung throughout the room. The center was kept clear for dancing.

Side doors opened to let in the cool mountain air and the sound of Guy Lombardo style music could be heard drifting out of the open doors.

Vacationers and residents dressed in their summer finery would dance the hours away. Good company, good music and good times were the fare of the evening.

Guest bands would join Gilligan's band during the summer months. Russ Morgan, who got his start at the Casino played quite often during the season.

The night club was in operation from 1922 until 1938 when Mrs. H.C. Smith bought the Casino.

Down came the bamboo rods, archways and Japanese lanterns. In their place a movie screen, theater seats, projection and ticket booths were installed. The Casino Movie Theater was in business.

No more lilting music poured forth from the open doors. Now could be heard the sounds of horses' hoofs, gun fights and "which way did they go pardner", as Tom Mix, Hoot Gibson, Buck Jones and Ken Maynard rode across the silver screen. The dulcet tones of Francis X. Bushman as he spoke to his leading lady brought many a tear to the eyes of the moviegoer.

No G.P., R or X rating in those days, you looked for stars one, two, three or four indicating whether the movies were bad, fair, good or excellent.

Admission was 15 cents and popcorn five cents a bag. Along with the feature was shown a newsreel, cartoon, previews and often some local merchant would have some advertising shown.

Mrs. Smith still runs the movie house which remains open from Memorial to Labor Day with two shows every night except Tuesday.

"Vacationers to the area are very surprised at the low prices," said Mrs. Smith, "and are even more surprised that they can buy a candy bar for five cents."

Perhaps if the people who patronize the Casino Theater listen closely, out of the walls will come the lilting tunes of the Gilligan and Morgan bands and the shuffling of dancing feet.

Subdivision rules complete

TANNERSVILLE — Pocono Township Planning Commission Monday finished work on the township's subdivision ordinance and sent it to the township supervisors for final approval.

The move climaxed months of work in up-dating and rewording the ordinance, which the planners recommended the supervisors approve. Approval may come at the September 5 supervisors' meeting.

The planners gave approval to a plot plan by Orchard Farms with the condition that a written provision dealing with road care in the development be added to the plan. The move was recommended by the commission's consultants, Miller Associates, and was agreed to by development owners.

The commission accepted for study a plot plan for Sunset Acres which was submitted by James Meller, Marshalls Creek, who is in charge of development.

The plan had to be up-dated from its original state before it could be accepted for study by the commission and Miller Associates.

A plot plan from Pocono Ski Haven was also accepted by the commission. Chairman Stuart Pipher said decisions on submitted plans will be made at the next meeting September 12.

Potential developers of a 93-acre plot of land on Summit Road, southeast of Route 314, were present to inquire about procedures involved in getting a plan submitted. They were advised to consult the subdivision and zoning ordinances before beginning work.

The planners were also told that the supervisors would meet soon to discuss the planners intentions to up-date the present sewerage ordinance.

The planners had attempted to begin such work but the supervisors told them to hold up so that a study could be done into the feasibility of such action.

The supervisors had promised a ruling by Aug. 14, but have yet to notify the planners as to their intentions.

Youngsters help flood victims

Mount Pocono Bureau

TOBYHANNA — "We expected to find a ghost town but found the people in the Swoyerville area working and sharing together."

"We wanted to do something and with the help of Mrs. Anne Nataro, who organized the group, we went to the area where Hurricane Agnes left devastation."

Eleven young people ranging in age from 12 to 15 who spend their summers at Pocono Farms recently gave a day of their vacation to three families in the Swoyerville area.

Leaving at 8 a.m. and returning home at 6 p.m., this group cleaned furniture, carried out mud and tore down plaster and did whatever was necessary so that professional workers could come in later and do their jobs.

The group included George Cicero, Julie Petruzzelli, Lilli Petruzzelli, Jon Lovisolo, Toni Falco, Fran Nataro, Nadine Nataro, Jimmy Nataro, Gordon Bloom, Joe Pecoraro and Fran Cicero.

"We'll never forget George Krakosky," said one of young girls, "his was one of the homes we worked in.

"When we arrived he was sitting there so dejectedly in what was left of his home," she continued.

"But after we had finished working he was so grateful and happy," said one of the young men. "He said the house was built in 1903 and he was born and raised there. He worked in the mines for years and had spent 25 years working with the Boy Scouts."

"He showed us some of the Boy Scout neckerchief slides that he hand carved, they sure were nice."

Comments ranged from "it sure was a mess" to "the people sure show patriotism, in spite of the shambles almost every house had a flag flying."

The group came home dog tired but are now making plans to return to the area again next week.

Area student back from expedition

LAKE NAOMI — Robert Denton, Jr., 18, son of Mrs. Gloria L. Denton, Lake Naomi, Pocono Pines returned recently from a paleontological expedition to the Big Horn Basin near Lovell, Wyoming.

Denton, who is a vertebrate zoology major at Stockton State College, Pomona, N.J., accompanied Charles Schaff, associate curator of Harvard University's Museum of Comparative Zoology.

The two month long trip was co-sponsored by Harvard and the National Science Foundation.

The expedition was formed to locate and collect fossils of early mammals which first evolved during the age of dinosuars.

Even though their search for the mammals was unsuccessful, they did locate a skull belonging to a relative of the duck-billed dinosaur. This is only the third skull of this type ever found.

Despite lead, Harris poll shows voters critical of Nixon

By LOUIS HARRIS

Although President Nixon held a large lead over Sen. McGovern in August Presidential pairings, a majority of the people who are likely to vote next Nov. 7 were nonetheless critical of Nixon's performance on three important issues: (1) his effectiveness in controlling the cost of living and unemployment, (2) for allegedly being "too close to big business," and (3) in fulfilling his 1968 pledge to end U. S. involvement in Vietnam.

Were these three issues to become the basis on which the electorate makes its final decision, the Republican position would be less secure.

But there are four major areas in which a majority of the voters also had deep reservations about Sen. McGovern:.

(1) — By 64-23 per cent, almost two out of three likely voters agree with the charge that "McGovern has poorly-thought-out plans, such as his welfare plan and his saying he would go to Hanoi to beg for the release of the prisoners of war."

(2) — By 56-27 per cent, a majority also agrees with the statement that "McGovern is too radical in his views and too quick to agree to way-out ideas."

(3) — By 51-24 per cent, voters also feel that "McGovern is not experienced enough in the handling of foreign affairs."

(4) — And by 50-31 per cent, voters believe the claim that "McGovern has too many ties to radical and protest groups."

It would appear from President Nixon's early lead that the negatives about him at this stage of the campaign do not cut as deeply as those against Sen. McGovern. More significant, however, may be the fact that in 1972 voters are in a highly critical mood about both men running for the White House, as indeed they are about the leadership of the country in nearly every other major private and public area. This could make public opinion polls more volatile than otherwise since loyalties are so thinly held.

Despite an otherwise strong showing, the figures on voter criticism of President Nixon caution against overconfidence:

— By 59-33 per cent, a majority of voters agree with the statement that he "has not done an effective job in controlling rises in the cost of living and unemployment."

— By 57-30 percent, a majority also go along with the criticism that President Nixon and the Republicans "are too close to big business."

— By 50-42 per cent, voters did not think in early August that Nixon "has kept his pledge to end U. S. involvement in Vietnam."

At a time when people still feel they are pinched by continually rising prices, when anti-business sentiment has reached majority proportions in the country, and when the Vietnam war remains an issue of deep concern, clearly there is ample ammunition for Sen. McGovern to fire away against his Republican opponent in this campaign.

As much as the areas of vulnerability on both sides are waiting to be exploited by the two opposing candidates, in the end the voters are likely to be making their decision on the broad dimension of which Presidential candidate evokes the strongest sense of trust.

In a survey of 1,635 likely voters taken earlier this month, the cross section of the electorate was asked: "If it came down to a matter of personal trust whom would you trust more to be President in the White House — Richard Nixon or George McGovern?"

WHOM TRUST MORE IN WHITE HOUSE

	Total Voters Per Cent
Nixon	60
McGovern	27
Not sure	13

These results suggest that on the key dimension of voter confidence, Richard Nixon also has a wide head start over George McGovern. However, the campaign is still in its early stages and much of the ultimate answer to that question will depend on the way the candidates project during the rough-and-tumble between now and Nov 7.

To test public reaction against campaign arguments being made against both candidates, the cross section was asked this series of questions: "During political campaigns, people sometimes are as much affected by the negative as the positive things about candidates. Let me read you some things that have been said about Richard Nixon and George McGovern. For each, tell me if you tend to agree or disagree. (READ LIST)"

(Criticisms of Nixon and McGovern

	Agree	Disagree	Not Sure
	Per cent
Negatives About Nixon
He has not done an effective job in controlling rises in the cost of living and unemployment.	59	33	8
He and the Republicans are too close to big business	57	30	13
He has not kept his pledge to end U.S. involvement in Vietnam	50	42	8
He is lacking in personal warmth and color	44	48	8
He is too old-fashioned and conservative for today's times	21	70	9
Negatives about McGovern
He has poorly-thought-out plans, such as his welfare plan and his saying he would go to Hanoi and beg for the release of the prisoners of war	64	23	13
He is too radical in his views and too quick to agree to way-out ideas	56	27	17
He is not experienced enough in the handling of foreign affairs	51	24	25
He has too many ties to radical and protest groups	50	31	19
He is an uninspiring speaker and personality	38	46	16

One by-product of these results which could make the remainder of the 1972 campaign more interesting than usual is the fact that voters are apparently less concerned with the personalities of the two candidates than with how they approach the key problems voters feel are facing the country.

Real story political

Protest hoopla misleading

MIAMI BEACH (UPI)—Every convention—even a counter-convention—has its share of hoopla, and the gathering of 4,000 antiwar, anti-Nixon protestors in Miami Beach was no exception.

While the hoopla—whether it be naked girls or dancing Nixonettes—attracts media attention, the real story is political and so it was with the demonstrators who camped for a week in Flamingo Park.

If there is a significance to be read from the four days of protest activity at the Republican National Convention it can be found in the contrast between the activities at the Republican and Democratic conventions.

Without a political focus, the protests at the Democratic convention took the form of a media carnival. At the Republican convention, however, the circus atmosphere was an exception and the protestors themselves quickly isolated and put down what they considered to be "ego-tripping freaks" seeking to draw attention only to themselves.

In the period between the two conventions, organizers from the Miami Conventions Coalition, an umbrella group representing some 60 different regional and issue organizations made clear their unhappiness with the circus atmosphere at the Democratic protests.

Key to their dismay was the overwhelming importance the alleged American bombing of the intricate North Vietnamese system of dikes took on for the protestors.

While much of the media—rightfully or wrongfully—played on the disruptive activities of a minute minority of the demonstrators on the fring of the demonstrations, more than 3,000 of the young people sat quietly for more than four hours in the rain and listened to political speeches.

David Dellinger, the 56-year-old editor of Liberation magazine and long-time pacifist, told newsmen: "We are making a political statement ... Our aim is to make clear that there can be no business as usual where a war criminal is being nominated for President."

Business did go on as usual at the Republican convention and the protestors were only marginally successful, if at all.

Just Between Us—

By Bobby Westbrook

And I thought I was so smart, getting in my trip to State College before the Labor Day rush. If the rush is any greater on 80 on Labor Day than it was last weekend, don't venture out.

It had been several months since I'd made the trip and I was amazed at the increased volume of traffic both ways. At no time was there an uncluttered stretch of highway, and no matter what speed you adopted you were either passing or being passed the whole way.

I had thought I could see some of the flood damage around Milton, but even on the bridge traffic was four-lane deep and the best you could do was keep your eyes on the traffic ahead.

The hills were the worst when the big trailer trucks attempted to pass each other you could see the red brake lights go on like a mile long sparkler as the following cars tried to slow up.

But being able to see at all became a quality to be devoutly wished for on the return journey. Mindful of my Sunday-night experience last time, I started in the afternoon. But so, apparently, did everybody else.

You remember Castrophy who-ever-it-was in Lil Abner who went around with a little black cloud hovering over his head. Well I got the same feeling as the thunderstorm followed me practically all the way.

It wasn't so bad on the two-lane stretch from State College to LaMar (wait until you see the truck stop that has transformed the farmland at LaMar), although I felt a little bewitched as I traveled in a drenching downpour with the road ahead bone dry until I came.

But on Route 80 the storm which followed, snarling at our heels at times and outdistancing us at others, had all the elements of a nightmare. Mindful of the chain-reaction pile-up near home, it's uncomfortable to be caught in a 60-mile an hour wind tunnel where you can't see, and daresn't slow up or pull of in front of the blinded drivers behind you.

The pounding of the rain, the thump of the spray from parallel cars, the roar of the trucks drowned out the sound of the thunder which must have followed the lightning which at times splintered the gray curtain of rain.

Next time, I kept promising myself, it will be the old way. Remember Freeland, Drums, Conyingham, Mifflinville, Aaronsburg, Millheim and Woodward? All those pokey little towns that made the trip hours longer. But you arrived having aged far less during the journey. But will I do it? Will you?

The Slim Gourmet

Ways with tomatoes

By BARBARA GIBBONS

Tomatoes — real tomatoes, not the pinkish pretenders in cardboard cartons — what a perverse species of vegetation! Unseen and unheard of 50 weeks of the year, then all of a sudden the countryside is sinking under their weight! Neighbors who never speak to you the rest of the year are begging you to take part of their overripe harvest off their hands.

That's the time for Chicken Marego, an Italian dish with French accents. It's delicious any time of the year, made with canned tomatoes, but particularly memorable when flavored with the garden-fresh tang of the vine-ripened tomatoes in season.

To prepare this dish you need one cupful of tomato pulp: the meat of the tomato sans skin and seeds. Really ripe tomatoes give up their skins easily, but you can make the job even easier by dropping each tomato in a pot of boiling water for a few second. Then strip off the skins in a snap. Cut each tomato in quarters and squeeze or shake out the seeds (seeds tend to give a bitter flavor to a cooked dish).

Slim Gourmet Chicken Marengo

- 3 pounds of disjointed frying chicken pieces
- 2 teaspoons salt
- ½ teaspoon coarsely ground pepper
- 2 cloves garlic, minced
- ½ teaspoon thyme
- 1 cup fresh tomato pulp
- 1 onion, chopped
- ½ pound fresh mushrooms, sliced
- ¾ cup dry Vermouth or Sauterne wine
- ½ cup water
- 2 tablespoons fresh chopped parsley

Trim away any fringe fat from the chicken. Salt and pepper the pieces and place them skin side down in a cold nonstock skillet or heavy pot. Heat slowly over moderate flame, allowing the skin to warm gradually. Then chicken will brown in its own fat. Pour off any fat.

When browned, add all remaining ingredients. Cover and cook over low flame for 45 minutes, until chicken is tender. Uncover and continue to simmer until liquid is reduced to a thick sauce. Skim any fat before serving.

Makes six servings, 162 calories each.

"HURRY-UP MARENGO" — salt and pepper chicken pieces and brown as directed in previous recipe. Then add one 10-ounce can of condensed tomato soup, one eight-ounce can of mushrooms and two eight-ounce cans of boilded onions (including liquid). Season with salt, pepper, garlic powder and thyme. Simmer covered for 45 minutes. Six servings, 187 calories per serving.

NORTH
♠ A 9 8 4 2
♥ K 9 3
♦ J 2
♣ K 5 4

WEST
♠ K Q
♥ Q 6 5
♦ Q 10 7 3
♣ J 9 8 3

EAST

♦ K 9 6 5
♣ Q 10 7 2

SOUTH
♠ 10 7 3
♥ A J 10 8 7
♦ A 8 4
♣ A 6

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 h	Pass	1 ♠	Pass
1 NT	Pass	3 ♥	Pass
4 ♥

Opening lead — three of diamonds.

A fine declarer does everything he can to avoid, or at least postpone, a two-way guess for a queen. He hopes something will happen along the way that will enable him to avoid the guess.

Here is a typical situation where West leads a diamond and declarer sees that his potential losers are two spades, a diamond and a trump. The trump loser seems to depend on guessing the location of the queen, which is finessable, but South has no idea at the start where the damsel is located.

He postpones a confrontation with the issue by ducking the diamond, winning the return with the ace, ruffing a diamond with the nine, cashing the A-K of clubs and ruffing a club in his hand to produce this position:

North
♠ A 9 8 4 2
♥ K 3

West
♠ K Q
♥ Q 6 5
♦ Q
♣ J

East
♠ J 6 5
♥ 4 2
♦ 9
♣ Q

South
♠ 10 7 3
♥ A J 10 8

Now declarer plays the A-x of spades, hoping a favorable situation will develop. As it happens, West wins with the king and, let's say, returns the queen of diamonds. Declarer ruffs with the king, discarding his ten of spades, and though he later loses a trump trick he makes the contract.

But note that West can defeat the contract by returning a low trump in the diagramed position. South wins with the eight, returns to dummy with a trump, but is then forced to lead a spade. East takes the jack, West shedding a club, and West scores the setting trick with the queen of trumps when East leads the queen of clubs.
